Girls, Get Married
A New Quinine
Picking Bootleggers
No Fear of Death

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company)

ROSAMOND PINCHOT, daughter of Amos R. E. Pinchot, niece of the Governor of Pennsylvania, retires from the stage. Her father, who has common sense, allowed her to act and she had great success in "The Miracle." No longer "interested in acting," the earnest young woman is "looking for serious work."

She will find the best kind in matrimony. Tall, fair and as Nordic as Eric the Red, this young lady should realize that to remain unmarried is a crime.

WHAT WOULD BERTHA, of "The Snows of Yesteryear," amount to if she hadn't created Charlemagne? Who would know Nancy Hanks if she were not the mother of Abraham Lincoln, or poor Abrotonen, if her Thracian blood, Celtic undoubtedly, had not produced Themistocles?

Young ladies, act, dance, sing, run for office, fly, shoot lions in Africa, if you must. But GET MARRIED and have children.

GERMAN SCIENCE asserts that a new drug called "Germanin" is an absolutely certain cure for malaria. Tests in Africa, where malaria ruins the lives of millions—as it does in the United States—show complete cures.

The new coal tar product will be a blessing to humanity, although quinine, one of the few specifics of materia medica, has saved entire nations from extinction.

Some believe that the downfall of Rome was due, not to dissipation and the blows of invading barbarians, but to the bites of home-grown mosquitos.

QUININE WAS introduced into Europe by Jesuit missionaries from South America, who got it from natives of Peru. It was named for the Countess of Cinchon, cured by it.

Many conservative doctors bitterly opposed its use. And many earnest Protestants denounced quinine as "an invention of the devil," because Catholic missionaries had introduced it.

THIS, AS the late Andrew D. White, great president of Cornell University, tells you, happened about 1653, when "Hoffman was attempting to give a scientific theory of the action of the devil in causing Job's boils."

WILL ROGERS, in London, tells Adolph S. Ochs: "You can pick an American bootlegger out of a crowd of Americans every time. He will be the one that is sober."

In old saloon days you could pick the owner of the saloon in the same way, also his bartender. Those that drank what they sold soon lost the saloon or the bartending job.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND British coal miners yesterday returned to work with the old wages and a seven and one-half-hour day. This probably means complete triumph in the coal strike for Premier Baldwin and organized capital. The latter has been generally triumphant since the war.

NATIONAL RUM RING BARED; 2 HELD AFTER LONG POLICE VIGIL

Two men arrested and 2,500 gallons of liquor valued at $35,000 were seized by Cambridge police in the largest single raid ever conducted in Cambridge, the cleanup being made in a barn at No. 28 Tudor street, that city.

Joseph Bloom, 30, a salesman, of Rochester, N. Y., and Oscar Michaels, a chauffeur, of Boston and Rochester, were taken into custody as they were about to enter the barn.

As a result of their story that they were hired for $50 a week by a prominent Boston man, said to be the head of a national wholesale rum ring, a request was sent out to cities and towns in Greater Boston to hold the man in question if found.

The raid, which followed an all-night vigil, was conducted by Captain John J. Canney and a squad of officers from the Central Square station.

Hundreds of the curious crowded into Tudor street when the fruit of the raid was removed in two five-ton trucks, which were forced to make several trips.

Acting on a tip, Captain Canney, with Sergeant William A. Curtin and Patrolmen Horace Lindsey, George Dalton, C. W. Keane, James Tierney and J. B. Kelley, climbed through a window in the barn last evening and kept watch until long after daylight.

Their vigil was rewarded when Bloom and Michaels appeared and were taken into custody. While the men were being questioned the telephone rang and one of the prisoners was ordered to answer it. He did so, despite a warning, shouted "The cops are here."

In addition to 40 barrels of liquor the police seized a large quantity

O'BRIEN, FLAYED BY INNES, KEEPS SILENT

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien said today that he would not answer the barrage poured out on him by Attorney Charles H. Innes, Republican politico here.

"I have nothing whatever to say," said the district attorney. "I have no answer to make."

Outside of the Innes counter-attack, the main feature of today's developments in the "contract graft" inquiry was the activity of Edwin L. Pride, well-known accountant, and his assistants.

For two days the accountants have been dividing their time between City Hall and the District Attorney's office, going over a mess of contracts and bids for contracts.

RUDY IN GREAT PAIN; GIVEN MORPHINE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 21.—The condition of Rudolph Valentino took a sudden and decided change for the worse today.

Infection, the dreaded aftermath of the operation which he underwent last Sunday for appendicitis and gastic ulcers, has set in.

He was in great pain this afternoon and frequent injections of morphine had to be resorted to.

The screen star's personal physicians and his manager, S. George Ullman, were visibly alarmed by the new state of affairs. They admitted his condition is now "very grave."

All food, with the exception of an ounce of milk a day, has been forbidden.

MARANVILLE IS GIVEN RELEASE BY DODGERS

Chicago, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—"Rabbit" Maranville, shortstop, was given his unconditional release from the Brooklyn Dodgers today, according to an announcement of officials of the club, here for the Dodgers' series with the Cubs.

Maranville was a "ten-year" man and for this reason could not be sent to a minor league club. Wolvers on him had been asked from every club in the National and American League, officials of the Brooklyn Club said, and when none of them took advantage of the offer, nothing remained for them to do but to release Maranville unconditionally.

The "rabbit" has had a long, stellar career in baseball. He was considered perhaps the greatest fielding shortstop the game has ever known.

He was born in Springfield, Mass., and started his professional baseball

THROAT ILLNESS KILLS MRS. F. W. VANDERBILT

Paris, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Fred Brick W. Vanderbilt died here today at the Hotel Ritz as the result of complications that followed an infection of her throat.

Private funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Church of the Holy Trinity.

Her body will be placed in a crypt and later will be transported to the United States.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 21.—News of the death of Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt in Paris was received here by General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt today.

It was said she had undergone an operation on July 18 at a place near Paris where she and her husband were passing the Summer.

Word of a turn for the worse was received by Gen. and Mrs. Vanderbilt just before a dinner and dance at their Newport mansion, the Breakers, last night.

A conference of the family, including Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, a sister of Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, and Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil, who was Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, decided that owing to the lateness of the hour, the dinner and dance could not be cancelled.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was the former Mrs. Alfred Torrence (nee Anthony). She was married in 1889 to Mr. Vanderbilt, son of the late William Henry Vanderbilt.

Her annual dinner to newsboys was a feature of the Thanksgiving holidays for thirty-four years.

SEEK 2 SLEUTHS WHO PLANTED 'HALL GUN'

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—Indictments are being sought today against two New York city private detectives for "planting" the pistol found in Philadelphia, supposed to have been used in the Hall-Mills murders, Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson announced.

Simpson, exasperated by what he believes was a deliberate attempt to throw him off the scent in the strange crime that has mystified society by dragging a false clew across the trail, said he will take speedy punitive action to prevent any obstruction of justice.

"I know that the gun was planted," Simpson asserted. "This was learned definitely by detectives working in Philadelphia. It was planted by operatives of a New York detective agency in the interest of certain people concerned in the case and with the object of throwing me off the scent."

Mrs. Hall today authorized a flat denial that she ever had such a brooch as was found by Edward Pierce.

A woman who said she was a relative of the Hall household gave the following statement to newspapermen from the Hall home at New Brunswick:

"Mrs. Hall has authorized me to say that she has never had any such brooch as has been mentioned, nor has a brooch of this sort even been in her custody or possession."

FAMILIES FLEE EVERETT FIRE

One fireman was injured, four families were made homeless and a thickly-settled residential part of Everett was threatened for a time today when a two-alarm fire swept the three-story wooden tenement at Nos. 310-314 Main street.

Ladderman Richard Kirby was cut severely about the hands and arms by falling glass and was given treatment on the scene.

Mrs. Anthony Papilio and five children were driven from the second floor by smoke and flames, but none of the members of the other families were in the house when the fire occurred. Several families left adjoining houses until the flames were under control.

The fire started in the basement and rapidly burned upward to the roof. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Besides the Papilio family, the tenement is occupied by John W. Duggan, his wife and seven children, and the families of John J. Delcord and Leo Bertuccio.

ONE DROWNED, 2 ARRESTED

One man is dead, another was taken to Cambridge City Hospital and a third was lodged in a police station cell today as the result of an early morning swim in the Charles River near the temporary bridge at the foot of St. Mary's street, Back Bay.

Henry Barry of No. 86 Concord street, Boston, was drowned and Benjamin Whittaker of Hammond street, Roxbury, suffered severely from exposure and chills.

Albert G. Phillips of Highland avenue, Roxbury, made an heroic but unsuccessful effort to revive Barry after getting him ashore. Lyter Phillips was arrested for al-

MOTHER UNAWARE OF CAMBRIDGE SUICIDE'S WEDDING 'DOWN EAST'

ENDS LIFE ON EVE OF RETURN

Boston with his bride, the daughter of a wealthy Chester family, and the couple had engaged a stateroom on the boat leaving Yarmouth tonight.

His marriage took place Thursday evening in the same house where he died. Plans for the wedding were made hurriedly and kept secret until the last moment, even from the immediate family of the bride, who was Miss Laurena Robinson, daughter of the late E. M. Robinson, former hotel owner and registrar of deeds in Chester.

Neither von Bieberstein's mother, Mrs. Lena von Bieberstein of Cambridge, nor other relatives of his knew of the marriage until informed today of his death.

POPULAR RESORT.

The coroner's inquest was held at Chester, which is one of the most popular Summer resorts with American tourists in Nova Scotia. The chief witness was Rev. Herbert Beaver, who testified that von Bieberstein appeared perfectly normal at the time of the marriage, but was apparently mentally unbalanced when he returned later and expressed regret.

The bridegroom went to see the minister directly after returning from a shopping trip. The clergyman advised him, he said, to return to his bride to think things over, but within twenty minutes the Cambridge man ended his life.

Death occurred in the home of Mrs. W. D. McNeill of Chester, the bride's married sister. Beside the body was found a razor and there was a gaping wound across Von Bieberstein's throat. The jugular vein was severed.

The young married couple had spent the afternoon shopping in Halifax in preparation for a trip to Boston and arrangements had been made by telegram for a brother of the dead man to meet them with an automobile at the pier here.

WENT UP TO SHAVE.

While they were getting ready to depart from the McNeil home, von Bieberstein is said to have entered his mother-in-law and said: "I may not see you again for some time." It was thought he referred to the journey to Boston. He then went upstairs to shave.

Shortly afterward the bride, her brothers and sisters and other relatives who were downstairs heard a crash. Rushing upstairs to investigate they found von Bieberstein bleeding to death. A doctor was summoned but in five minutes the bridegroom was dead.

The bride is 19 years old. She shared in a large estate left by her father, who was one of the leading men of Chester and instrumental in developing it as a popular Summer vacation resort. Chester is about 40 miles southeast of Halifax.

Von Bieberstein was a World War veteran and a graduate of Massachusetts Agricultural College. After the inquest today it is expected that the body will be shipped to Cambridge for burial.

AUTO HITS TAXI; 1 DRIVER HURT

Harold Lloyd, twenty, of No. 288 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, suffered serious injuries today when the roadster which he was driving collided with a taxi-cab at Commonwealth avenue and Charlesgate East.

The light roadster was tossed over the curb by the terrific force of the impact, and landed in a heap of wreckage on the sidewalk.

Lloyd was taken to the City Hospital by Traffic Officer Frank J. O'Reilly, on duty at Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues. Lloyd suffered concussion of the brain and contusions and abrasions on the right shoulder.

of paraphernalia for its manufacture, including coloring.

It was said that the barn was used by a rum ring, the headquarters for which is in Boston, although several New York men are behind the local group.

While the barn has been in use only a month, the police say that thousands of gallons of liquor have been shipped from it, all manufactured on the premises. Orders for various brands of Scotch, rye and gin were filled from the same still, with the requisite coloring added to make them accord with the labels.

GUNSMITH IN CARBARN CASE GIVEN FINE OF $50

James E. McDonald, of Cornhill, a gunsmith, was fined $50 today by Judge Michael J. Murray in Municipal Court, on a charge of failing to keep a proper record of the sale and transfer of guns. McDonald appealed and was held in $500 bail. McDonald, police say, admitted he sold to Edward J. Heinlein, one of the carbarn trio, the gun found at the time of Heinlein's arrest for the Waltham murder. This sale, however, was properly recorded. McDonald was charged with taking guns from boys, wanted by Maine police, and giving them revolvers in return, without keeping a proper record of the transfer.

VALENTINO SUFFERS RELAPSE

The discovery that infection had set in occurred when the incision made during the operation was being dressed today. Immediate steps were taken to fight the new menace.

Ullman visited the famous screen "sheik" today before any serious change was noted and admitted later Valentino's memory of events during the last few days was hazy when he chatted.

Later, when Ullman talked to newspapermen his face was drawn with worry. This alarm was also mirrored in the face of Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the United Artists, Inc., producers of Valentino's pictures, who had arrived at Polyclinic Hospital to wait upon the patient.

The doctors had considered the motion picture star's condition as satisfactory that, two days ago, they ceased to give out bulletins.

And early today Valentino asked for a cigarette. It was given him, the second he has had since he was stricken. But the doctors refused to let him sit up in bed while he smoked. Of late years he has smoked 40 a day.

His three physicians were at his bedside this afternoon.

The sudden change in Valentino's condition surprised his physicians. It had been thought he was greatly improved in fact, on the road to recovery.

His awake refreshed today after a good night's sleep and his temperature was normal for the first time.

But shortly before noon he suffered a sudden relapse and his temperature climbed to 102. He complained he was in great pain and the doctors gave him morphine injections.

The fact that infection has set in has alarmed his physicians. Six days had passed since the operation and, as infection almost always develops before the fourth day, the doctors had been confident that their patient had safely passed the dangerous stage.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, after a consultation of Valentino's physicians, the following official bulletin was issued:

"There has been a slight spread of infection in the abdominal wall, causing considerable discomfort. There is nothing in the condition to cause undue excitement. Mr. Valentino's temperature is 101, pulse 80, respiration 32.

Signed, Dr. Horace Meeker, Dr. Paul Durham."

This bulletin revealed that Valentino's pulse had dropped a point since noon.

U.S. TAKES HAND IN MILL STRIKE

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—The Federal government took a hand in the general strike at the Manville-Jenckes Company plant at Manville when Thomas G. Brown, a representative of the Department of Conciliation and Mediation, arrived in this city and sought a conference with the leaders of the United Textile Workers of America and the plant officials.

Labor leaders were surprised when they learned of the arrival of the government official and said they had not asked for Federal intervention. Officials of the plant could not be reached to confirm the report Mr. Brown was seeking a conference between the workers and management prior to Tuesday, when [illegible] cial Mill in Woonsocket will meet to take a strike vote.

At 2 o'clock the union workers of the Yaill-Barnes Field Company [illegible] were scheduled to meet to discuss a grievance at that plant which caused a two-day strike a week ago. The workers returned pending negotiations.

Dr. Daniel Forces Plants to Change by Grafting

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—The character of plants may be changed by grafting with the most advantageous method, that of forcing two widely different types to merge, Dr. Lucien Daniel of the University of Rennes, France, announced before the International Congress of Plant Sciences.

Operating on plants which produce tubers, but not seeds and plants which produce seeds but not tubers, Dr. Daniel said he had obtained plants having both tubercles and seeds. Plants which normally flower but once a year were made to flower continuously for a time.

CHURCH TO ASK AID OF MEXICAN CONGRESS

Mexico City, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—It is the intention of the Catholic Episcopate to petition the Mexican Congress to amend the religious clauses of the Constitution. This announcement was made today to the Associated Press by Bishop Diaz, secretary of the Episcopate.

To change the provisions of the fundamental law, the religious regulations for which have brought on the present controversy between the church and the government, will require a two-thirds vote by Congress and, after this, approval by a majority of the State Legislatures.

The new Congress, before which the proposal of the Episcopate will be placed, is due to begin its sessions September 1.

The campaign will be handled by Catholic laymen, as participation in politics by churchmen is forbidden by law.

Seized Papers Bare Wide Plot to Overthrow Calles

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Papers seized when General Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, with a band of his followers were arrested at Duluxura have revealed an extensive plot to overthrow the Mexican government, Captain A. A. Hopkins of the Department of Justice believes.

Coincidentally with his remarks, it was rumored from a number of points that rebel bandits were about to launch their attack.

Among these rumors was one that a boat left San Pedro, Cal., Wednesday or Thursday night with thirty-five men and arms for the Lower California peninsula. There they were to be joined by others in an effort to seize Lower California.

Estrada with his staff officers and 150 men equipped with machine guns, rifles and an armored truck was headed for Lower California when arrested.

FEAR ALL HANDS ON SCHOONER ARE LOST

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Hopes that the Lahave fishing schooner Sadie A. Knickle and her crew of 22 weathered the storm, which two weeks ago flung the Lunenburg schooner Sylvia Mosher upon Sable Island and scattered the crew without a trace, have almost died. Only the wife of Skipper Corkum clings to the feeble hope the schooner may have been beaten far to sea. Corkum, when he sailed for the fishing grounds, said he would put into Sydney Aug. 20 for supplies, but he has not been sighted there.

Mrs. Corkum keeps a lonely vigil with a neighbor, Mrs. Lewis Wharton, whose husband was a member of the crew of the schooner Hazel R. Hynes, owned by the Nicholson Fish Company of Bucksport, Me. WIFE FIGHTS TO FREE 'RICHEST INDIAN' MATE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Anna Laura Barnett, white wife of Jackson Barnett, 76, known as "the world's richest Indian," looked to the law today to bring her husband back to California.

He was forcibly seized at his home by a United States deputy marshal and Department of Justice agents and rushed toward Oklahoma to face a Federal court contempt charge.

The aged Indian was arrested on a writ of attachment issued by United States District Judge Robert Williams at Muskogee, and is being returned. It was said, to testify before the Federal Grand Jury in regard to the circumstances surrounding his marriage.

Mrs. Barnett has wired her attorney in Oklahoma to procure bond for her husband as soon as he arrives and to fight the charges against him. She announced her intention of starting today for Muskogee.

"It is only another one of the serious persecutions those Oklahoma people have instituted," the wife declared.

Barnett is said to have disregarded a summons for his appearance before the Muskogee Federal Grand Jury last month. Barnett's marriage has involved him in two civil suits, one attacking the legality of a $500,000 gift to his wife and the other seeking annulment of the marriage on grounds of fraud.

It is charged that Mrs. Barnett kidnaped the Indian from his former Oklahoma home and married him to gain control of his estate.

'STAND BY CAL,' G.O.P KEYNOTE AT OUTING

Springfield, Sept. 21.—In a clarion call to the G. O. P. rank and file of the State, United States Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, keynoter in the big Republican outing held here today at Riverside park, stressed the importance of upholding the administration policies through the re-election of Senator William M. Butler.

The outing, mapped out on a pretentious scale, was preceded by a parade headed by the 104th Infantry band. Speakers in addition to Senator Fess included Senator Butler, Governor Fuller and Lieutenant-Governor Frank G. Allen. Charles W. Bosworth, the presiding officer, was introduced by Congressman Henry L. Bowles of the second district.

Governor Fuller attacked the attempts being made by the Democrats to bring into the campaign "arguments that have no bearing on the situation," because of the "lack of real issues."

"Notwithstanding the talk of the pessimists, the plain truth of the business conditions is that today this country is enjoying the greatest prosperity of any nation in the world," he declared. "Throughout the past seventy years the great industrial development and prosperity of the nation has largely been made possible by the Republican administration, and many laws for the benefit of the people have been enacted."

RETURN TO N.Y. STATE FOR VISIT OF STORK

Irving and Ellin on Way to Home of Max Winslow From Port of Quebec

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—Irving Berlin, famous music composer, and his wife, formerly Miss Ellin Mackay, society girl, are on their way from Quebec to visit Max Winslow at his Summer residence here, Mr. Winslow informed International News Service today.

"I don't know where the Berlins are at present," said Winslow, "but I assume that they are motoring and on the way here."

Winslow said that he expected the Berlins would arrive at his place during the day.

The Berlins disappeared from public view shortly after the liner Montcalm docked at Quebec yesterday.

The secret return of the pair in keeping with their romance according to a friend who says that Ellin before sailing from the other side said:

"I want the little life to be born on American soil."

Berlin and his wife were driven away in the song writer's automobile, which bore New York license plates and was at the pier to meet the steamer.

Great secrecy shrouded their plans and there were rumors that they had proceeded to Montreal.

Other reports were that the Berlins had registered at a Quebec Hotel under an incognito. None of these reports was confirmed.

Winslow would not admit that he had had direct word from the Berlins but said that he was waiting for them to arrive and had made all preparations to receive them.

Had Suite of 6 Cabins on Voyage to America

Quebec, Que., Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—Irving Berlin, famous song writer, and his wife, formerly Miss Ellin Mackay, who returned incognito from Europe, booked their passage from Glasgow under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston.

Efforts to conceal their identity when the Mountcalm docked were frustrated by New York newspapermen who met the couple and plied them with questions.

The Mountcalm is a one-cabin class steamer but the Berlins commanded a suite of six cabins on their voyage.

Berlin wrote a statement for the press as follows:

"We are returning to America because it is our home and we hope the time has come when we will be allowed to enjoy the beautiful seasonal of a home-privacy. The only question concerning me, in which the public might be interested, is answered when I say I am going to begin work on a new show."

CUPID HITS 2 IN ONE FAMILY

Two days was as long as two young Everett brothers could keep the secret of their double wedding. They had succeeded, however, in fooling all their relatives and intimate friends when they went to Malden and there became benedicts.

The brothers were Harold and Alfred S. Coffin of No. 82 Clinton street, Everett, employes of the Beacon Oil Company. They took for brides Miss Dorothy L. Andrews of No. 101 Kinsman street and Miss Dorothy A. Burbank of No. 87 Baldwin avenue, Everett. The Rev. H. Robert Smith, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, officiated.

COOL WEATHER TO STAY AWHILE

Autumn will prolong her unseasonable visit to Boston and other parts of New England over the week-end. The weather man today failed to see any break in the cool spell during the next thirty-six hours.

Week-end bathers will shiver in an east wind, unless the weather reports are wrong.

The lowest temperature in New England during the night was at Greenville, Me., 36 above, only four degrees above freezing.

A maximum temperature of 70 is expected in Boston today and tomorrow. The official forecast reads:

"Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature. Fresh to strong easterly winds."

PRIZE WINNERS SHOW BRILLIANT HORSEMANSHIP AT SHOW HELD ON THE HUGH BANCROFT COHASSET ESTATE

RIBBON WINNER
Miss Jessie Bancroft rode "Brilliant Crest" to victory in more than one class at the Cohasset Horse Show.

JANE BANCROFT WITH 'BERKELEY QUEEN'
The younger of the daughters of the Hugh Bancrofts held the reins over a smart stepping harness horse in the combination class at the horse show conducted for the benefit of the George Mealy Post, A. L., at the family estate in Cohasset and was roundly applauded as she drove through to a blue ribbon in her class. Her victory was one of the most popular of the entire show.

ENTERING RING
Mrs. William B. Gagnebin (Suzanne Mandell) helped arrange the show and also rode in several classes. She is shown here astride "Seal King."

MUCH APPLAUDED
Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske's spirited performances were roundly cheered by the onlookers at "Deer Hill" the Bancroft estate.

COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Cohasset's Benefit Horse Show Proves Great Success

FAR EXCEEDING THE HIGHEST AMBITIONS OF ITS promoters the Cohasset Horse Show, under cloudless skies and with a smart string of entries, adds another notch to the satisfying record of equine spectacles hereabouts. That the George Mealy post of the American Legion will reap a goodly harvest of clinking coin is the pleasant result.

COHASSET YOUNG PEOPLE, headed by Miss Jessie Bancroft, took prominent part in horse show arrangements, and riding like centaurs carried off many a ribbon. There was much applause when Miss Bancroft, putting her bay, "Brilliant Crest," through his paces, won a blue in the road hacks class.

IT WAS A RIBBON winning day for the Bancroft stables—the smaller daughter of the house, Miss Jane Bancroft, having earlier in the day carried off a blue with "Betty" in the pony class. Both daughters are perfectly at home in the saddle, as well as holding the reins in driving classes.

ANOTHER LEADER in Cohasset's horsy set, and at the forefront in show doings, Mrs. William B. Gagnebin (Suzanne Mandell) appeared often in the ring. She has a string of handsome mettlesome mounts, and each made the smartest of show appearances.

MISS HARRIET ROYCE donned the riding habit (togs which are rapidly becoming to her slender type) and rode her handsome gray "Scarlet Hunter" over the jumps with aplomb and technique, cheered on by the Miss Margaret Keep Williams, close friend and ally—applauded from the side lines.

TO NAME ALL the exhibitors is to recount those well known stables which fameus ribbon winners enter the show round—Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske and her horses, the Tower Hill Farm string, with Miss Lorraine Liggett riding superbly, and Miss Muriel Crocker, a consistent winner.

FOLLOWING MISS CROCKER'S example, her little nephew, Crocker Wight, rode to victory in one of the children's classes. This young man, boasting some eleven Summers, was upon Miss Crocker's "Land of Clover" and carried off the white.

ARTHUR BLAKE and Miss Barbara Bremer, Miss Virginia Ayars, Miss Gretchen Bremer, Miss Virginia McNeil, Miss Leslie Blake, Miss Mary McElwain and Miss Anne Gagnebin are a bevy of younger enthusiasts who make splendid ring appearances.

OF THE ELDERS viewing the scene from motors parked about the ring, Mrs. J. Lewis Brener was smartly turned out in a white coat over tan frock, topped by a wide becoming hat of transparent malina. Mrs. Sherwin C. Badger (Mary Bancroft wore a rose wrap and frock of white.

SPEAKING OF Miss Lorraine Liggett, this accomplished young horsewoman won a salvo of applause in the jumping. Of Tower Hill Farm's three entries, she rode "Winchester." The handsome bay was a timber topper of first calibre, and thus another ribbon was added to the Liggett collection.

FROM TEN UNTIL six in the evening the show went on, winding up with a spirited spectacle, the open jumping, with a field of thirty or more mounts. A well rounded show, and one of which the instigators may well be proud.

A THIRD CROWDED house is due at Stillington Hall this evening for the Stillington Players in "She Had to Know." Also for three evenings next week the play's the thing at Stillington, with society in glad raiment flocking to this artistic innovation.

BOTH MRS. A. LYNDE COCHRANE (Vivian Wessell) and Leslie Buswell as leads in the clever George comedy are achieving personal triumphs. Other members of the cast play up splendidly, and altogether it's such a company of amateurs as may well justify Mr. Buswell's Little Theatre ambitions.

QUITE ASIDE from the company's success, congratulations and acclaim are Mr. Buswell's portion as builder of beautiful "Stillington Hall," a playhouse unique and picturesque in the extreme. Huge whitened rafters, wrought iron fixtures, cavernous fireplaces, and leaded glass windows are "Stillington" features arranged with loving oversight by Mr. Buswell himself.

MORNING AFTER PLAGUE FOR U. S. DRYS

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug. 21—The "Monday morning big head" is returning to plague the advocates of prohibition.

This was the thought that Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York left behind him here, following his call on President Coolidge at White Pine Camp.

Factory and mill owners and large employers generally are beginning to aware from their one-time conviction that the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act were to be followed by greater efficiency in the working classes, and a happier home life for families of the employed, in the opinion of Senator Wadsworth.

There is a steadily growing sentiment among the capitalistic classes for modification, Wadsworth says he finds.

Open flaunting of the law, production of bad liquor, acquisition of the drinking habit by those who before prohibition never thought of imbibing—these are the reasons to which the New York Senator attributes the swing in sentiment. He finds the high price of hooch liquor is cutting more and more into the family funds, at the same time giving the head of the family a more severe headache.

Senator Wadsworth is standing for re-election as a wet.

MOORE COMING HOME TO GO UNDER KNIFE

Paris, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Alexander P. Moore, former ambassador to Spain, confined to the American hospital at Neuilly as a result of old injuries to his leg, will return to the United States as soon as possible for an operation. It is probable he will leave within a week.

Mr. Moore, who suffered considerable pain, was forced to undergo an operation immediately after his arrival in Paris last week. While his condition has improved, physicians attending him consider he should return home as soon as possible.

will. Money doesn't get tired.

THE BRITISH government's suggestion that the miners should work eight hours and get more pay seemed "reasonable" to prosperous Britishers, and Americans, too, that would die in six months if they had to work in a coal mine four hours a day. Seven hours under ground is harder than ten hours in the sunlight.

AMERICAN TOURISTS, traveling "for to admire and for to see," also to visit dressmakers, milliners and get away from prohibition, spent in France last year $226,160,000—a great deal of money, and REAL MONEY. It would be a pity if misunderstandings about debts that may never be paid should make Americans in France so uncomfortable as to cut off that yearly tribute to the French dressmaking minotaur. We want France to prosper, and it is pleasant to have Americans leaving hundreds of millions in France, bringing back information.

ABD-EL-KRIM, courageous leader of the Riffs, starts soon for Reunion Island, to remain exile until he dies, like Napoleon on St. Helena. The French good naturedly allow him to take a wife or two and other relatives. The French may take a boatload of chiefs and ordinary people from North Africa to Reunion Island. Let them look at Abd-El-Krim, and report at home what happens to those that fight on the ground against flying machines.

A STUDENT in Heidelberg died after a duel. The police chief now will stop duels. Perhaps Germany's laws forbid dueling, but are not enforced. Our laws and Constitutions of States forbid prize fighting and race track gambling, but don't interfere with either, because both are profitable.

So with dueling. Heidelberg citizens protest that must go on, otherwise students will stay away from Heidelberg and merchants will lose money.

The French saying, "Seek the woman," should be changed in some countries to "Seek the dollar."

'Hi, Say! New York's a Sad, Slow Town! Jove!'

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—All this talk about Yankee hustle in the metropolis is just a fallacy, in the opinion of Harry Ainsworth, editor of "The People," one of the largest Sunday publications in England.

"Not even in China and India are people more leisurely and waste more time," he declared, as he was leaving for London on the Coronia.

Mr. Ainsworth has spent two weeks here getting impressions of America for publication. He thought at first that "New York was the ugliest city I had ever seen in my life," but he changed his mind about that.

"It is a very sad city," he declared, explaining that while many people laughed he saw only one smile in the whole town. He thought this might be attributable to the large number of straw hats. "In England thoughtful people do not wear straw hats," he said.

He came to the conclusion that New York was not an American city, but one inhabited by hybrids, as he did not find in it people he considered American in type.

and also studying reams of cancelled checks in the office of the city treasurer.

After a conference with the District Attorney today the accountant said he and his assistants would spend all day Sunday working at City Hall.

The Innes-blast came from Saratoga Springs, where he was informed that O'Brien was investigating charges that the Innes Summer home at Scituate had been decorated with greenery, plants and shrubbery, the "gifts" of the city's park department.

"O'Brien is a publicity hound," said Innes, "and begins his criminal proceedings with a stenographer and press agent. Reputations are no concern of his if he can get the publicity he desires, and which he believes will lead him to higher office.

"Charles G. Keene is running his own campaign for the Republican nomination for district attorney and I have nothing to do with it. Keene injected himself into the fight and I had nothing to do with that.

"Mr. O'Brien is trying to pose as the martyr fighting the politicians and I seem to have been picked on to prove his case."

JAPS IN FAVOR OF NAVAL CUT

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Japanese government highly approves of the recent address of Frank B. Kellogg, American Secretary of State, at Pittsburgh, in which the latter said the United States desires progressive international agreements to limit and ultimately reduce armaments.

Secretary Kellogg's pronouncement was taken as a hint here that President Coolidge expects to call a naval disarmament conference if the Geneva meeting fails.

STEINERT WEDS AT BEVERLY

Boston and North Shore society was represented at the noon wedding today of Mrs. Louis Leviseur of No. 476 Commonwealth avenue, to Alexander Steinert of No. 401 Commonwealth avenue, which took place in the Summer home of the bride on Obec street, Beverly.

The ceremony was performed out of doors by the Rev. Charles E. Park, D. D., minister of the First Church in Boston. The bride was given in marriage by her son, Frederick J. Leviseur, and the nuptial music was played by Alexander Steinert, Jr., well-known composer and pianist. The couple left for a motor tour after which they will be at Mr. Steinert's Summer home "Stoneledge," on Hospital Point at Beverly Cove.

TRACING HUB SLAYER BY FINGERPRINTS

Boston police today returned to the authorities at Ellsworth, Me., fingerprints they have been using in their investigation of the murder of Solomon Rosenbaum, Mossgehl setts avenue, South End jeweler, as a result of the arrest in Ellsworth of Millard Dobbs. Dobbs, arrested for breaking and entering is believed to have had some knowledge of the murder of the Boston jeweler, and his photograph and finger prints were forwarded to this city. His description is said to tally with that of the man sought by the local authorities.

THREE 'BITE' AT RUSSIAN 'GEMS'

Doing a flourishing business in Russian "crown jewels" of wondrous luster, flimflam artists today netted their third victim in Greater Boston, this time in Lynn. All three of the victims, who have paid over good money for Scent stones in the past three days have been tailors.

Louis Rosenthal of No. 254 Summer street, Lynn, paid $61 for two sparkling diamonds and thought he had a bargain until he showed them to his friend, the jeweler across the street. Two men and a woman, just over from Russia, they said, disposed of the precious gems. Their total value was ten cents.

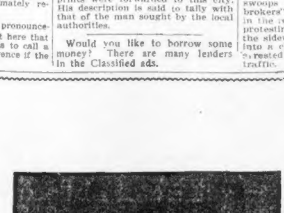

Other victims, however, were not so lucky as Rosenthal.

Benjamin Dubinsky, a tailor of No. 289 Cambridge street, West End, paid $250 for four glistening stones gleaned from the coffers of the royal family. They were found to be worthless.

Max Bricker, who conducts a tailor shop at No. 50 Hampden street, Roxbury, handed over $1,500 of his hard-earned money for two worthless pieces of "junk." It took three men and a woman to convince Bricker that he was getting a real bargain.

POLICE ARREST TEN AS "SIDEWALK BROKERS"

A squad of patrolmen in plain clothes, headed by Special Officer Leahy of the Milk street division, today made one of their occasional swoops down upon the "side-walk brokers" who infest the sidewalks in the rear of City Hall Annex. The protesting business men who use the sidewalk for offices were herded into a circle, and ten of them were arrested on a charge of obstructing traffic.

60-MILE CIRCLE FULLER AIM

The day of the Summer "camp" is practically gone.

Nowadays the camp is a substantial structure with most of the comfortable appointments of a Winter home.

The low price probably more than anything else turned the Summering population to the more substantial and certainly immeasurably more comfortable bungalow as against the former ramshackle "anything" with a roof over it and a roof that too often leaked.

It was a Summer camp that gave being to the original roof joke.

"Why don't you mend your roof?" asked a visitor to a Summer camp as he watched the rain trickle through one dismal afternoon.

"Because it is raining," replied the camper whose whole thought was only of being out-of-doors whenever possible.

"But why not mend it when it is not raining?" persisted the visitor.

"Because, you idiot, when it is not raining, it don't leak," replied the host.

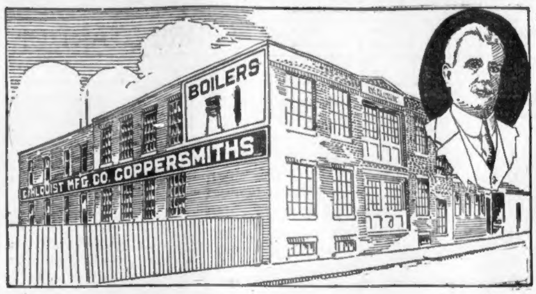

That kind of a camp is "out" now. Manufacturers specialize in patterned Summer camp buildings which cost little.

The W. A. Fuller and Son Company of Main street, Clinton, carry the specialization further than mere manufacture.

First they set up their business in the heart of a beautiful Summer terrain. Then, to cut freight costs, they formulated a policy of building only within short distances of their plant.

"If we can build all the Summer bungalows within a radius of 30 miles of Clinton," they say, "we shall have business enough and our customers the advantage of lower prices."

This unique idea works to the firm satisfaction. At the moment their plant is busy and it has become the headquarters of building material of every description.

New "Dahlquist" Mfg. Co. Factory, Boston, Mass. Increased facilities will permit of better service than ever.

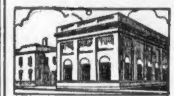

ON West Third street, South Boston, Mass., adjoining its former large plant, the Dahlquist Manufacturing Company has finished the construction of one of the best equipped factories in New England. The demands upon this popular and progressive concern by the master plumbers, fitters, etc., of the country necessitated the erection of this magnificent and commodious factory the better to fill the requirements of its rapidly expanding business.

"Service" and "satisfaction" are the words that have a full intrinsic value in the management of the Dahlquist Manufacturing Company. The president and proprietor, Theodore W. Dahlquist, commands the respect of his large clientele. He is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the trade, and his product is unconditionally guaranteed.

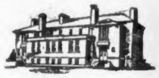

The Dahlquist Manufacturing Company, besides comprehending staples, makes specialties as well. Some of our finest country residences, apartments and institutions are equipped with "Dahlquist" products.

Those of our readers who are in need of painstaking service and first-class manufactures would do well to communicate with the Dahlquist Manufacturing Company, "the largest manufacturers of copper boilers in New England."

THE NORBERTH

HERE is a house that at first glance spells home. What type of domestic architecture is more delightfully enduring than the Pennsylvania Dutch Colonial? Its restful sturdiness, alluring harmony of color, refreshing cheerfulness and delicate neatness are so pleasing and impressive. Like many things American this house is quaint and colorful by influences from other lands. The roof is of cool green concrete tile such as has been long used in the charming town and country houses of France and Germany. The warm pleasantly toned brick has its touch of old England. Erin's shamrock forms the motif of the shutter cut-outs.

Passing beyond the portals of the dignified entrance, quite New England Colonial in character, we enter the inviting hall with its open staircase. The living-room with its three large front exposure windows, small paned French door leading on to the large side porch and the interesting tapestry brick fireplace of the room make an admirable setting of coziness for even the most modest of furnishings.

The dining-room is of convenient size and practical arrangement. The kitchen is modern in every essential detail.

Note the effective arrangement of the bedrooms and the ample closet room, the placing of the bathroom and the upstairs hall.

This house constructed of the highest grade materials can be built for $8500.00-$9000.00.

COLORS REST AND ENLIVEN

BY M. B. PEASLEE
President Knox Varnish Co.

In stories as far back as fiction endures, the stock description of the kitchen was—a place of shining pots and pans and an atmosphere of immaculate cleanliness.

But the flushed face of the housewife, glowing with exertion, was lightly dismissed probably as too suggestive of unpoetic work.

Then within youthful recollection science stepped in with some practical thinking and a host of marvellous electrical devices considerably lightening the unromantic burden of work in the housewife's daily workshop.

Now science goes a step farther. This time it applies the psychology of color to the kitchen.

Many shades of color are subtly restful while simultaneously exhilarating. One is generally unconscious of its effect but color, nevertheless, strongly influences the mind.

Red, for instance excites and exhilarates. Several shades of green and blue are restful. Yellow is cheerful, friendly. And everyone is acquainted with the depressant effect of purple and funeral black. White is pleasant and soothing.

So the pleasant, exhilarating, cheerful, friendly colors have been paraded into the kitchen to do their bit in lightening humdrum tasks—the attractive kitchen is a high-point in the home beautiful.

White, owing to its immaculateness, is one of the basic colors for the kitchen borders and panels and shelves. Light yellow tones walls warmly. Add to these furniture decorated with touches of vivid red and restful blue, gay curtains and colored linoleum rugs and the housewife works with pleasure that is immeasurably increased.

The cheering paint pot and brush makes the round of the rooms according each its proper treatment. They bring sociability into the dining room and soothing quiet into chambers.

Red, rose, jade green are dining room shades and definitely add good cheer to the feast. Even floors are painted or finished with varnish.

Labor-saving appliances have done much for tired housewives, indeed, but who can measure the untold artistically chosen color treatment for the rooms of the home.

ROOP OUTING GALA EVENT

Over one hundred employes of the William J. L. Roop organization and several building materials men made merry last Saturday afternoon as guests of the well-known builder at his farm on Line-brook road at Ipswich.

At one o'clock twenty-five automobiles in parade formation conveyed the party from Mr. Roop's Melrose Highlands office to the outing grounds. As this line of cars merrily rolled along in the holiday procession on the Newburyport turnpike its gay decorations attracted much attention.

Even picnics or outings are not without drama, and in this case the bit of drama was provided by the non-appearance until apprehended by a scouting expedition of the truck which conveyed among other important picnic appurtenances the food and beverages for the somewhat famished builders.

After a considerable demonstration upon the arrival of this belligerent vehicle and the snapping of a group picture luncheon was served on the greensward. From then until eight, in the face of showers which were entirely ignored, carpenters, roofers, masons, concrete workers, plumbers and draftsmen vied with one another in tugs-of-war, quoits contests, running events and other interesting outing activities.

4 Reasons Why Value-Seeking Home Owners Choose the OIL Nu-way BURNER & Bryan Heat Generator

1. CONVENIENCE: There is no coal to shovel, no ashes to carry out, no coal dust and dirt to clean up. The NU-WAY serves you automatically—day and night, month after month.

2. SAFETY: The NU-WAY is absolutely safe. The safety devices are made by Honeywell and have proven dependable over a long period of time.

3. ECONOMY: The cost of oil heat in comparison with coal heat cannot be accurately determined, because the prices of these two commodities vary greatly throughout the year. However, no man whose time is worth over five dollars a day can make money with a shovel.

4. HEALTHFULNESS: Health authorities agree that the varying temperature of coal-heated homes is the cause of much of our winter sickness.

STAGE AND SCREEN

George Beban a Real Pooh Bah. Some actors are just actors—but not George Beban, who comes to the "Met" on screen and stage in "The Loves of Ricardo." Not content with merely acting in the good old fashioned way in front of his own picture, Mr. Beban also is director, film editor, scenarist, producer and financial backer of this ambitious personal effort.

FILMS HAVE ANOTHER WEEK OF EASY GOING BEFORE START OF VERY PROMISING LEGITIMATE SEASON

A BOND SALESMAN IN ACTION is supposed to look like this, but the fact is that Monte Collins and Meeka Aldred are shown in a scene from "The Loves of Ricardo" at the Metropolitan, starting today. And the story is Italian, which promises good things like salami, spaghetti, patchouli, panuchi, or what would you?

WHATEVER IN THE WORLD makes Monte blue? Must be he just comes by it naturally, for there's many a leading man who would feel "in the pink" with a job opposite Patsy Ruth Miller in "So This Is Paris!" (State) First rate fillum, they say.

"INTO HER KINGDOM" is the title of this movie—which doesn't tell so much after all. However, the important and fundamental issue of this campaign, fellow citizens, is that the picture shows (at the Olympic) Corinne Griffith and Claude Gillingwater. (Deafening cheers.)

AND IN THIS CORNER, "The Honeymoon Express" (Fenway), which must have slowed down at the City Hotel (under new management), Whassis Junction, for Helene Costello to show John Patrick the choicest and most cherished treasure of the trousseau. Fair enough!

SEASON GETS UNDER WAY LABOR DAY

Though the last lingering days of August generally produce more than one sign of life in the downtown drama, the playgoer's serious attention is seldom gained until the "bell rings" on Labor Day.

Al Jolson

Whatever it is this tocsin tells, the notes are heeded on Tremont Street and together with Fall hats, new things appear on the Rialto. Glowing descriptions in electric lights announce the return of indoor entertainment, business booms in the box office and trade is resumed in swept and garnished houses.

Peering ahead into the not too foggy future, a number of tempting playbills can be seen. Leading the list of the Messrs. Shubert, is Al Jolson in "Big Boy." It is a musical comedy, of course, but new force is added to the Jolson gyrations Besides other vigorous vocalizing, there is new fervor for "mammy" and an ensemble of Negro Spirituals. And the "battalion of beauties" is not forgotten. "Big Boy" is announced as the opening attraction at the Shubert for September 13th.

Across the way at the Wilbur, a new Viennese operetta, "The Daring Duchess," opens this house on Labor Day. Gertrude Lang and Glen Dale are the stars, and the production will move to Broadway for a run after the Boston criticism is applied.

The season will get under way on Stuart Street with the opening on Labor Day of "The Great Gatsby," with James Rennie and the original New York cast. At the Majestic the curtain rolls up Labor Day matinee, with Harry Houdini and his special production of mysticism.

George Jessel in "The Jazz Singer" starts off at the Hollis on September 4th, and a new musical attraction takes the stage at the Tremont on the holiday—"Bubbling Over," with Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield.

VARIETY and PICTURES

NEW BOSTON—Tom Mix, hard-riding hero of the West, in "Hard Boiled." Also in the cast are seen Helene Chadwick, Phyllis Haver, Emily Fitzroy and Ethel Gray Perry. On the stage, a bill of vaudeville.

SCOLLAY SQUARE — Bebe Daniels in "The Palm Beach Girl." On the stage, a bill of vaudeville headed by the terpsichorean specialty, "The Dance Shop," starring Ina Alchova, a Boston girl.

HOWARD — (Burlesque) "Oh Frenchy" revue with Tommy Levens, Felix Martin and Billy Waldron. Also vaudeville and pictures.

BOWDOIN SQUARE — "The Wolf Hunters," with Mildred Harris and David Torrence, and "The Golden Web," with Lillian Rich and Huntley Gordon. On the stage, a bill of vaudeville, headed by Adelyn Bushnell in the playlet, "The Settlement."

MODERN — "The Honeymoon Express," with Irene Rich, Willard Louis and Helene Costello, and "Christine of the Big Tops," with Pauline Garon, Cullen Landis and Robert Graves.

BEACON — "The Honeymoon Express" and "Christine of the Big Tops."

All your wants are waiting for you in alphabetical order in the Classified ads on the next to the last pages.

Blonde Beauty

Alden Gay, who helps George Ford make "Dearest Enemy" something to look upon with willing eyes, holds a minor but, nevertheless, graceful part of the gay show now on its last days at the Tremont.

ABLE STAR IN TEUTON FILM

Mady Christians, who plays the role of Princess Alix in "The Waltz Dream," at Loew's Orpheum, spent the early part of her life in America. Her father was director of the old Irving Place Theatre, when German light operas and plays were produced there, and Mady made her first professional appearance on this stage. Later her father directed for Carl Laemmle and Mady played in a picture with Pauline Frederick.

Mady Christans

When the family returned to Berlin Miss Christians devoted herself seriously to a career on the German stage. It was there she met Ludwig Berger, director of "The Waltz Dream." Berger was director for Max Reinhardt at the time, but later took over the management and direction of the Staats-theatre.

Swedish Actor Becomes American Citizen

Einar Hanson, former Swedish screen and stage star, who came to America but four months ago, has applied for citizenship papers and is preparing to build a home in Beverly Hills, California. Hanson, who plays opposite Corinne Griffith in "Into Her Kingdom," at the Washington street Olympia, is looked upon as one of the most promising of the new screen players and is content to cast his lot with Hollywood and America.

Einar Hanson

ITALIAN STAR DISCOVERED AS NORDIC

George Beban, brilliant character actor whose stage and screen production, "The Loves of Ricardo," appears on the stage and screen of the Metropolitan starting today, is not an Italian, contrary to public opinion. He is of Scotch and Irish extraction and was born in Monticello, New York.

George Beban

When he first went on the stage he was cast, more frequently than not, as a Frenchman. It was not until he had achieved wide recognition in these roles that he turned to his Italian delineations.

How he first began considering Italian roles is interesting: As a youth he worked after school for an Italian fruit dealer. He was up and-coming during his clerkship, too, but he made the fatal error of imitating the various mannerisms of his "boss." One day Boss discovered him at it and soon after George was looking for another position.

"The Loves of Ricardo" has a large cast with 227 principals, all of whom appear on the stage with Mr. Beban, enacting a tense situation which the film has led up to and which, upon its conclusion, dissolves into the film again. Beban, who is playwright and producer, as well as actor, is the innovator of this unique form of entertainment.

Clive Returns Tomorrow With Many New Plays

Word has been received by Edward Underhill, business manager of the Copley Theatre, that E. E. Clive, actor-manager of that playhouse, is now returning to the United States after a Summer in England.

Mr. Clive is a passenger on the White Star liner Cretic, which is scheduled to tie up at the Commonwealth Pier some time tomorrow afternoon.

According to Mr. Clive, as expressed in his cablegram to Mr. Underhill, the former's trip to England and the continent has met with marked success. While there, Mr. Clive has secured the American rights to many new and interesting productions, none of which have ever before been seen in this country.

CHANGES in VAUDEVILLE

LOEW'S ORPHEUM — "Masterpieces," with a special company of singers, dancers and instrumentalists; Allen and Norman in "Dis-Oil-Usions," a comedy act; Neilson and Warden in a comedy singing and talking act called "Who's to Blame"; Bell and Naples in a character skit, "Take-A-De Chance"; Kenoson, "Nipponese Flapper"; Alvin and Keely, aerial gymnasts, and others. The feature photoplay is "The Waltz Dream."

B. F. KEITH'S — Joe Rines, Karl Nelson and orchestra; "Nights of Love," miniature revue, with special scenes and costumes, comedy singing and dancing; Miller and Mack, "The Bing Boys," in a comedy skit; Harris and Holly in "Mirth and Melody"; Weldar Sisters and Company in a "Demi-Tasse Revue"; Noel Lester and Company in "Versatility," and others.

FILM FARE FOR NEXT WEEK

METROPOLITAN—(Starting today) George Beban in person and on the screen in "The Loves of Ricardo," a photoplay which dissolves into a spoken drama on the stage with Mr. Beban and a cast of twenty-seven players in support. The stage part is described as a colorful and important sequence of the film theme, that of an Italian marriage festival with singing and dancing. A Neapolitan stringed orchestra is featured in the production. The entire presentation, both on stage and screen, was written and devised by Beban.

* * *

LOEW'S STATE—"So This Is Paris!" adapted from the bright French comedy, "Reveillon," by Henri Meilhac and Ludovic Halevy. The featured roles of the cast are in the hands of Monte Blue, Patsy Ruth Miller, Lilyan Tashman and Myrna Loy. Ernst Lubitch directed. A Warner Brothers' production. On the stage Irving Aaronson's "Crusaders" jazz band. Frank Cornwall directs.

* * *

* * *

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—"The Waltz Dream," adapted from the Oscar Straus operetta. A sophisticated comedy of pre-war Vienna. A German made production featuring Mady Christians, Willy Fritch, Xenia Desni and Julius Falkenstein. Ludwig Berger directed. On the stage a bill of vaudeville.

* * *

FENWAY—(Starting today) "The Honeymoon Express," a comedy-drama of a wife in revolt. In the cast are Irene Rich, Helene Costello and Willard Louis. The companion feature is Joseph P. Kennedy's "Bigger Than Barnum's," with Viola Dana and George O'Hara.

Starting Wednesday, Lillian Rich and Huntley Gordon in a picturization of E. Phillips Oppenheim's "The Golden Web." Also W. C. Fields in "It's the Old Army Game."

FAIR HELEN AT CHARITY FETE

Helen Ford is taking no chances venturing down the South Shore again, even for the "Dearest Enemy" benefit for the Children's Vacation House at Sunset Point, tomorrow. Therefore the State police will provide her a special escort down the line to Nantasket, where she and the rest of the "Dearest Enemies" will be entertained at Paragon Park. Pemberton Pool beckons to the aquatically inclined, and the "Dearest Enemy" girls will break in some new bargain bathing suits they have acquired. At 3 o'clock they will gather at the ball park, where Miss Ford will be presented with "the keys of the city" by the mayor of Hull and selectmen. Miss Ford will then pitch the first ball in the game—provided that she is permitted to toss it from half-way between the pitcher's box and home plate—that being about the long-distance range for 4 ft. 10-inch girls. The entire company will have dinner at the Children's Vacation House.

ON THE BEAUTIFUL BLUE DANUBE

READ IT AND REJOICE! There's a message here of tender, Viennese sentiments with Xenia Desni and Willy Fritsch in "The Waltz Dream" at the Orpheum. It's a delightful film of wine and waltzes and love's young dream before, after and during the ball.

HOLYOKE GIRL STARS WITH SAN CARLO

Rose des Rosiers, formerly a department store worker of Holyoke, but now a member of the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, is announced as a featured star for the Boston engagement of Fortune Gallo's company.

This young singer, who rose from poverty to the ranks of grand opera in Paris, will sing the role of Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust" during the forthcoming Boston season in October.

Left an orphan at the age of twelve, the little Massachusetts girl, who is the 18th child of a family of 19 children, assisted her older sisters in the support of the large family by singing in picture houses, working as salesgirl in department stores and, as often as she could secure engagements, with bands that toured New England.

When she grew old enough to go to New York to study with the great teachers of voice, the ambitious girl worked in Gimbel's department store as salesgirl, and through the greatest economy supported herself and paid for her singing lessons. All this time the beauty of her voice and her talent for acting developed to such a degree that friends in Holyoke interested Miss Belle Skinner, the Holyoke philanthropist, in her behalf, with the result that she was sent to Paris to prepare for the operatic stage.

How well she came up to the expectations of these good friends was attested two years ago when she appeared in important operatic roles in Paris. Fortune Gallo's attention was called to her shortly after her return to this country, and he presented her last spring in "Thais" while his company was filling a season in Pittsburgh. The impresario was satisfied after one performance of Massenet's opera that she would be an ideal member of his company for French roles.

Hub's Lone Attraction In Drama In Final Week

Like "the last rose of Summer,—left blooming alone," the musical comedy, "Dearest Enemy," is on the last week of its three months' run at the Tremont. Manager Ford is anxious to get to Chicago for the Sunday night opening before Labor Day, on which there will be an extra matinee of course; and to achieve this long jump and assemble the production for the opening, it is necessary to curtail the Tremont engagement.

First Run Films And Where You'll Find Them

"The Loves of Ricardo" at the Metropolitan, with George Beban, the star, on stage and screen. The entire production written and directed by Beban. A George Beban production.

"So This Is Paris!" at Loew's State. Adapted from the French comedy, "Reveillon." Monte Blue and Patsy Ruth Miller are featured. Ernst Lubitsch directed. A Warner Brothers' picture.

"Into Her Kingdom" at the Washington Street Olympia. Corinne Griffith is starred. Adapted from the story by Ruth Comfort Mitchell. Svend Gade directed. A First National picture.

"The Honeymoon Express" at the Fenway (starting today). Irene Rich, Helene Costello and Willard Louis are featured.

San Carlo Star

Rose des Rosiers is a Holyoke girl whose first attempts at high notes were in a picture theatre, now is one of Fortune Gallo's best bets in "Thais" which will be given at the Boston Opera House in October.

OPENING DATE AT WALDRON'S

Waldron's Casino will open Monday, August 30th, with the "Powder Puff Frolic" and give Boston its first glimpse of the "bigger, better and busier burlesque," which the Columbia circuit promises for the coming season.

The Casino, with Charles T. Waldron at the helm, will offer more entertainment than ever before. Motion pictures of the better kind, bright vaudeville and the burlesque show will complete the usual 3 in 1 continuous program at the Hanover Street Playhouse.

Mabel Sloan

The whole Columbia circuit, with its 40 houses, 3,000 workers, providing fun for 500,000 persons a week, has been busily preparing for their season. Former stars of burlesque, such as Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Charlotte Greenwood, Fannie Brice, Billy Van and others equally well known have made suggestions for current programs. These musical comedy stars still retain their affection for burlesque and have given the Columbia circuit the benefit of their knowledge.

Leading the feminine contingent in the "Powder Puff Revue," appears Mabel Sloane, able and fair exponent of the best talent in burlesque's whirling "wheel."

"Burlesque this year will be bigger," Charles Waldron declares, "That means bigger in every way and it will be better—more colorful costumes, more startling lighting effects, different types of dancing, and varied plots. Being 'bigger' and 'better,' it cannot help but be 'busier.'"

Gayety Gets Ready for New Season; Opens Next Week

The Gayety is scheduled to reopen next Saturday with Jimmie Cooper and his new "Black and White Revue" as the first attraction of the season. In line with the announced new policy on this circuit, of "bigger, better and busier" things in burlesque, the Gayety looks forward to many interesting things for the approaching semester. In addition to the regular favorites of the burlesque "wheel," there will appear the best of the cartoon shows, mystery plays and the double-shaded offerings of the various "Black and White" shows.

NEWBEAUTIES SOUGHT BY LEONARD

Gus Leonard, whose very jazzy band of syncopating musicians has made nervous feet more nervous all the way from Philadelphia to Boston, is now engaged in a campaign of picking a brand new Miss Massachusetts from among the sprightly dancers of the old Bay State. Gus will eventually select the one and only Miss Massachusetts authorized to specially appear as the dancing queen of his orchestra.

Gus Leonard

In the quest of this particular Miss Massachusetts, Mr. Leonard will gather about him fifty candidates for the supreme honor, one from each town upon which the Leonard orchestra will descend with saxophone, fiddle and traps. The campaign will start next Wednesday night when Mr. Leonard and his musicians will appear at Lincoln Park in Worcester, to be followed with engageents at the Lake Boon ballroom in Hudson on August 27, the Town Hall in Clinton on September 3; Commodore Ballroom, Lowell, on September 10; Liberty Hall, Haverhill, on September 11, and the Roseland Ballroom, Methuen, on September 20.

Altogether, Mr. Leonard and his orchestra will appear at fifty of the most important and popular ballrooms in this region, with a committee in charge at each point to make the local selection for the honor of being crowned Miss Massachusetts.

When the fifty preliminary candidates have been selected, a monster final event will be staged in Boston at which a solemn court of newspaper men will pucker an editorial brow and decide which of the group shall be crowned Miss Massachusetts the First. In the meantime, Gus Leonard and his melody boys will be grinding out tempting dance music.

GIRL SMOKERS INVOLVED IN CANCER THEORY

U. S. Expert Says They Will Prove or Upset His Opinion Within Five Years

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Man could become immune to cancer, but probably never will, because society cannot direct the mating of men and women resistant to the disease, as is done with animals, in the opinion of Dr. Erwin F. Smith of Washington, D. C., who is attending the International Congress of Plant Sciences at Cornell University.

He is a former president of the American Association for Cancer Research.

Repeated contact with soot, coal tar, paraffin and anilines are believed to be among the common causes of cancer, with possibly a more common cause, in Dr. Smith's opinion, the arsenic brought into the body through continued use of tobacco.

Dr. Smith pointed out that cancers most common in men were those of the mouth, throat and stomach, caused possibly by contact with the arsenic sprayed on tobacco as it grows in the field and used again as a preservative in the storage sheds.

AS TO WOMEN SMOKERS.

The passing of five years, or a decade, he believes, may demonstrate the correctness of this theory because of the increasing use of tobacco by women, who now are susceptible chiefly to cancers of the breast and other types seldom found in men, but who do not now have to any extent cancer of the mouth and throat that may be caused by contact with the arsenic of tobacco, and which now affect men.

His own experiments with plants, he said, have shown that the cancer organisms produced are not unlike those obtained in rats fed on nematodes taken from the muscles of the West Indian cockroaches found around sugar factories or in ships engaged in the West Indian trade.

Cancer, he believes, may be cured by operation, if discovered in time. Superficial cancers and those near or on the skin and easily reached may be overcome by proper and skillful use of radium and the X-ray.

DOUBTFUL OF "CURES."

In this connection, however, he pointed out that many supposed "cures" cannot be called such definitely until the elapse of time has brought no recurrence of the malignant growths.

Experiments with animals have shown that it is possible to breed a race entirely resistant to cancer, Dr. Smith said, but also to breed another race 100 per cent, cancerous. It is believed the same would apply to the human race, were it possible to direct the mating destinies of man.

Dr. Simth, recognized as a leading authority on cancer in this country, believes cancer is caused by an organism or parasite, and that the organism which produces cancers or tumors on plants is the same as that which affects the human body.

RUSSIAN MUSIC AT ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY

There will be a service of Russian music at St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday evening. These four choruses, from the beautiful liturgy of the Russian Church, the works of leading representatives of the modern school of Russian Church music, will be sung by the large Summer choir of men and women: "Cherubim Song (Rachmaninof); "O Light Devine" (Kastalsky); "Our Father" (Gratchnaninof); "Bless The Lord" (Lyanof). At the morning service at 11 o'clock the choir will sing "The Heavens Are Telling," from the "Creation"; and Wesley's "Lead Me, Lord." Leland A. Arnold, choirmaster of Trinity Church, Newton Centre, is in charge of the music at the Cathedral during the Summer.

At the morning service Rev. Edward T. Sullivan will preach on "The Hidden Cost of Conduct." His subject at the evening service will be "The Secret of Serenity and the Contented Mind."

10 DAYS' RAIN AT CAPITAL, POTOMAC OVERFLOWING

Washington, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—It has rained in the capital for ten consecutive days.

The Potomac River is five feet above its normal mark and water is creeping over the sea wall at Haynes Point, opposite the Army War College.

A break in the constant lownpour is forecast for tomorrow.

Confession!

By Arthur B. Reeve

Pola Negri Will Star In 'Camille' Film

By LOUELLA PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—Pola Negri's tears were changed to smiles yesterday. Not only did she receive an encouraging telegram dictated by Rudy himself, but B. P. Schulberg granted her request to play "Camille."

When she told me her good news she was like a child in her enthusiasm. She has long cherished a wish to play Dumas' romantic heroine, and it is no secret that she has ideas of her own on the subject.

Pola Negri

Her "Camille" will not be a modern character, neither will she be surrounded by the exotic background that made Nazimova's picture a sort of Arabian Nights' fantasy.

If possible Ernst Lubitsch will direct her and I have B. P. Schulberg's word for it that he plans to make it one of Famous Players-Lasky's most lavish productions. Pola has her own ideas on Armand, but since negotiations have not yet been closed with the screen star she has in mind, I shall keep my word and not divulge her secret.

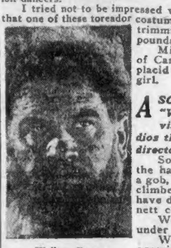

Norma Talmadge, a few months ago, announced that she would make "Camille" for United Artists. We will all be waiting to see which picture is made first. Norma's schedule includes several productions before she starts "Camille," and Pola will make an original story by Gladys Unger before her "Camille."

Meanwhile, she is working as many hours as are humanly possible to finish "Hotel Imperial," so she can get to New York as soon as she can to see Rudolph Valentino.

ONE THING IS CERTAIN, DOLORES DEL RIO and her toreador will have costumes in "Carmen," that no one can criticize. Winfield Sheehan, the boss of Fox productions, was assured of that pleasant fact yesterday.

He received a cablegram from Edwin C. Hill, Fox's special agent, who is in Madrid, saying that he has collected seven hundred and fifty costumes including the uniforms of toreadors, matadors and Spanish dancers.

I tried not to be impressed when my informant whispered to me that one of these toreador costumes was so heavy with gold and silver trimmings that it weighs seventy-five pounds and cost $2,000.

Wallace Beery

Miss Del Rio certainly looks the part of Carmen if she is not too gentle and placid to take the temperamental cigarette girl.

A SCENE WAS PHOTOGRAPHED in "We're in the Navy Now," when I visited the Famous Players-Lasky studios that neither Raymond Hatton nor his director, Eddie Sutherland, expected.

Some practical joker on the set untied the hammock in which Hatton, who plays a gob, was supposed to sleep. When Hatton climbed in he had a tumble that would have done credit to a first class Mack Sennett comedy.

Was he mad? Wouldn't you have been, under the circumstances?

Wallace Beery with the guileless expression of a six-year-old, loudly denied that he had any part in the joke. As for Eddie Sutherland, he made it plain that practical jokers in the future will please try their stunts on other sets.

Quick Quizzes on the Movies

By BARBARA BENTON

"WAITING," FROM MEDFORD—Edmund Lowe might be reached now at the Fox Studios, Hollywood, Calif., but he is soon due to sail abroad, and you might miss him at that. Address Richard Dix in care of the Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Astoria, L. I.

D. L. K. DORCHESTER—There was no such picture as "The Man Without a Country." Undoubtedly you are thinking of "As No Man Has Loved," based on the same theme, but renamed for greater possible value in the box office. By the bye, D. L. K., pay little attention to movie titles. When an enterprising titlist moves to substitute the more sensational "Male and Female" for J. M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton," you may be ready for most anything.

T. E. R., BOSTON—Leon Errol's last picture was "Clothes Make the Pirate." His next is "A Lunatic at Large," but it has not been released as yet. In other words, it's not at all "at large."

D. E. S., HAVERHILL—Vilma Banky had not been seen on the screen in America prior to First National's release of "The Dark Angel," in which she was starred with Ronald Colman. It was shown here at the Washington Street Olympia.

TROTSKY GOING ON 'VACATION'

Moscow, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.)—Leon Trotsky, chief leader of the opposition to Joseph Stalin and the Communist party central committee, is going on a vacation, it is announced.

The council of people's commissars has appointed M. Skobliev to replace Trotsky as head of the concessions committee during Trotsky's absence.

Trotsky will utilize his vacation to complete a new book, it is stated. It is believed previous books of Trotsky, opposing the Communist Party Central Committee, may be responsible for his present vacation, and actually he has been ousted as head of the concessions committee.

The Central executive committee has confirmed the dismissal of Leo Kameneff from membership in the Council of Labor and Defense, indicating the intention of Stalin and his supporters not to permit members of the opposition to occupy even the most subordinate positions in the government.

COMMUTERS HIT BY B. & M. TIEUP

Several thousand commuters were delayed reaching the city today by a broken drawbridge on the Southern Division tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad near the North Station, which blocked the tracks for more than three hours.

Many trains were diverted to other tracks entering the station from the Portland division, but the delay caused by the re-routing stalled Southern Division trains all along the line into the suburbs.

The tie-up extended through most of the morning rush-hour period. Machinery on the bridge over the Charles River slipped, lowering the draw a few inches and making it dangerous for travel. It could not be repaired until a wrecking crane from the East Somerville yards hoisted it into place, after which workmen replaced the defective parts.

The lines affected feed the North Station from the direction of Cambridge, West Somerville, West Medford, Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and Lowell.

LABOR CHIEF'S SPEECH AIDS TRAINING CAMPS

Plattsburg, N. H., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—President William Green and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, today made an inspection to the Citizen's Military Training Camp, where they are the guests of the War Department. Motion picture films of the inspection were made for the government by Colonel J. T. Brady. In the opinion of the high army officers, the Citizens Military Training Camp will profit immensely in consequence of the endorsement of the movement voiced by President Green in his address to the student soldiers. Hitherto, they say, labor has been skeptical of military training, but its attitude now is one of cooperation.

ASK STATES TO PUT BAN ON UGLY BILLBOARDS

Washington, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—Too many ugly billboards and too many old shacks. That is what is wrong with America's motoring roads, the American Association said today in broadcasting an appeal to State Highway officials to take remedial action. Thomas P. Henry, president, said there were too many trick signs such as "Slow Down—Chicken Dinners Ahead."

Little red note-books are handy things to have when a fellow is going to college. He may get lonesome nights. But Jock Hamill was never troubled with that "all alone" feeling. Do you want to know why? Start "The Woman Game" in the Boston Evening American next Monday.

FEARS FOR LIFE OF FERNALD

West Poland, Me., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Grave concern was expressed today over the condition of U. S. Senator Bert M. Fernald, who has been critically ill from intestinal poisoning, which affected his heart.

While reluctant to make a statement before conference with consulting physicians, Dr. W. W. Bolster today said his chances for recovery were "very slim."

The condition of Senator Fernald took a turn for the worse early today and he was said to have been depressed and to have suffered an attack that affected his heart.

VOICING THE GREAT ... DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

MOVE TO GUARD NEWS BY RADIO

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug 21 (A.P.)—Radio fans should be careful to pick up only those messages to which they are entitled under resolutions adopted today by the conference of news agencies under the auspices of the League of Nations.

The resolutions suggest international law penalties for "pirating" messages.

They ask that governments adopt legislation by which a receiving station license would only give the right to receive dispatches from public broadcasting stations and trial stations. This would include radio concerts, lectures, weather, news of the Stock Exchange, time of day and general news.

Legislation, however, should forbid the picking up of wireless telegrams and messages of any kind intended for subscribers, the resolutions state. If these messages are received by mistake, they should neither be reproduced in writing nor communicated to a third person. Moreover, their use for commercial purposes should be forbidden.

The resolutions suggest a penalty of eight days' to three months' imprisonment for publication of news thus picked up or for use to the detriment of the person for whom it was intended.

RADIO WEATHER MAPS TO VESSELS AT SEA

Washington, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Broadcasting of weather maps to ships at sea is the objective of experiments being conducted here by the Navy Department's radio station at Arlington and the Weather Bureau. Preliminary tests indicate that these maps, giving the movement of storms, high and low pressure areas, wind directions and other data of great value to them, may be transmitted daily to navigators.

The experts are using a simplified development of the system of broadcasting photographs invented by C. Francis Jenkins.

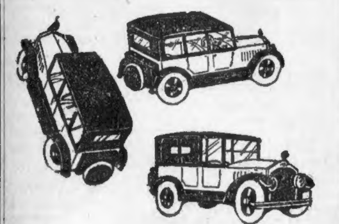

Lack of facilities aboard most vessels for the development of photographs has caused the experimenters to employ a "pen-and-ink" variation of the Jenkins device. Maps thus transmitted in the tests are described as being sufficiently detailed to permit ship's officers to work out from them their own forecasts.

That's the Trouble With These Broad Tuned Sets

A young bride asked her husband to copy a radio recipe she wanted. He did his best, but got two stations at once, one of which was broadcasting the morning exercises and the other the recipe. This is what he took down:

"Hand on hips, place one cup of flour on the shoulders, raise knees and depress toes and mix thoroughly in one-half cup of milk. Repeat six times. Inhale quickly one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, lower the legs and mash two hard boiled eggs in a sieve. Exhale, breathe naturally, and sift into a bowl.

"Attention! Lie flat on the floor and roll the white of an egg backward and forward until it comes to a boil. In ten minutes remove from the fire and rub smartly with a rough towel. Breathe naturally, dress in warm flannels and serve with soup."—

HOW THE RADIO IS BRINGING BETTER UNDERSTANDING

One of the finest things about radio is the glimpses one gets into the lives of many persons in many parts of the country and the good will engendered.

You become attached to a speaking voice—it rings true.

You associate culture and refinement with another because you have had the privilege of listening many times to broadening thoughts presented by that one in a well-modulated, truly correct diction.

You look forward to the exquisite music of a certain organization.

You feel grateful to the one who is backing the delightful hours you enjoy listening to artists who have already raised your standards in art and music and literature.

You find beautiful thoughts and high ideals voiced by sects and organizations whose ideas you have never before understood.

You find so many things in common between you and members of an outside world that you could not come in contact with if it were not for radio.

You are spending more time at home and you are getting acquainted with the home folks and what they enjoy.

Attention Radio Fans

Starting Monday, August 23, the Boston Evening American Radio Page will feature a Radio Dictionary of all the perplexing words used in radio. All the technical and trade names will be defined in simple, non-scientific language. After following the daily list of words no reader should have difficulty in "understanding" a technical article. Ten words a day will be defined until all the words are covered.

FINE RECEPTION AT SEA

According to a radiogram from the S. S. Homeric, American stations are coming in strong through the Summer static 1,000 miles at sea, in the transatlantic tests being made by K. L. Allerdyce Arnott, British radio expert.

"Pouring in" is the description of the results Mr. Arnott has wirelessed.

Among the stations thus attaining great distance under Summer conditions are WBAL, WPG, WEEI, WJZ, WGY, WLS, WHAR, and WBZ.

Mr. Arnott has installed three receivers on the deck of the Homeric, one using only a loop.

He will make a report of all American and European stations heard on the crossing.

Radio Queries

Q.—In the August 19 issue of the Boston Evening American mention is made of a potentiometer. What is the effect of this insertion and how is it made?

Atlantic. R. S. W.

A.—A potentiometer is used to obtain very fine variations of current when the grid return is connected to the slider of the potentiometer. Any fraction of the filament battery voltage can be obtained whereas by connecting the grid return to the cells of the battery would result in voltage changes of 1½ volts each time. This would be too great. Another use in radio frequency amplifiers is as an oscillation stopper by adding enough resistance so that the circuit will not oscillate. A diagram has been mailed.

Q.—My set is connected to a brass water pipe for a ground and this is also used by another set. Will there be any decrease of efficiency or any interference?

Atlantic. R. S. W.

A.—If the antennae are situated far enough apart there should be no loss of signals or interference. However, with two radio sets in the same house squeals from one will seriously affect the other. Do not worry about the common ground connection if it is a good one.

Q.—I built my set with two "Simmons" coils as pblished some time ago in the Boston Evening American and have had excellent results. Are there any copies of the Boston Evening American Book available?

A.—So great has been the demand for these books that they are all gone (even the office copy has disappeared). If any particular information pertaining to the Simmons set is desired we will be glad to furnish it upon receipt of a stamped envelope.

Q.—What will be the output of two UV 201 A tubes used in a radio transmitter? What is the range of a ten watt transmitter? A. J. C.

Lynn.

A.—Since you do not state what plate voltage you will use we cannot say what the output will be. It can be found in the following manner: Suppose the plate voltage is 100 and the plate current is 20 milliamperes. The input wattage will be 100 times 20 divided by 1000 or 2 watts input. One half of this is wasted as heat so that a 1 watt output will result. In any case the safe output will not be very great. A ten watt transmitter has a very variable range. Some transmitters of this power, under excellent conditions and operators with years of experience, can talk all around the world. The average range may be better expected as a few hundred miles.

Q.—I wish to have the diagram of a set to be used in Abyssinia, a very mountainous, hot country. Outside of the rainy season it is quite dry and free from humidity. Reception of European stations is desired as well as occasional American stations. What radio set will be best for these conditions?

Sandhill, Mass. V. E. B.

A.—Such a receiver must be very sensitive to receive over long ranges. It must also be able to receive a band of wave lengths from about 200 to 30,000 meters in order to get all classes of stations. There are two possible choices: a three-tube regenerative set as the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company type IP 501 receiver, which costs several hundred dollars and is intended for these conditions, or a specially built five- or six-tube, two-stage radio frequency amplifier with interchangable coils (honeycomb idea) to cover a band of waves. A wiring diagram of the simpler set has been mailed.

U. S. SHIP LINE TO RUSSIA

BAR 'STUNTS' IN AIR BY NAVY

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur said here today that the navy would not attempt another Honolulu flight, a polar flight or any other "stunts" in the near future.

"All those things cost money," he said, "and the navy hasn't any money to throw away. Right now we have five ships stationed along the Pacific coast to assist the big seaplane PB-1 on her flight from Seattle to San Diego.

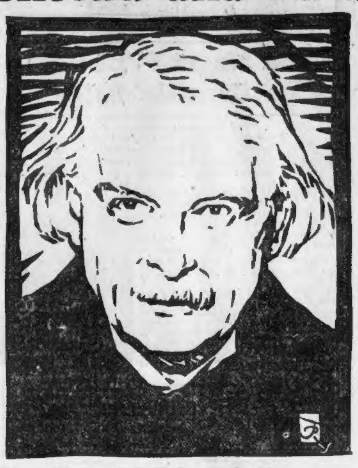

"The navy will make many flights this year, but none of them will be across the Pacific. We have on the Pacific coast an ideal testing ground for long-distance flights.

Lloyd George Compares Clemenceau and Baldwin

By David Lloyd George

"Whatever may be said of the Clemenceau epistle, there is a certain nobility in its motive and its passion. 'Clemenceau is essentially a French patriot. But what of the Baldwin letter? I cannot help but regard that as the meanest document ever penned by a minister of the British Crown." (Illustrated by striking Massaguer cartoons of Clemenceau and Baldwin.)

SECOND SECTION

SPORTING VIEWS OF INTEREST FROM FAR AND WIDE

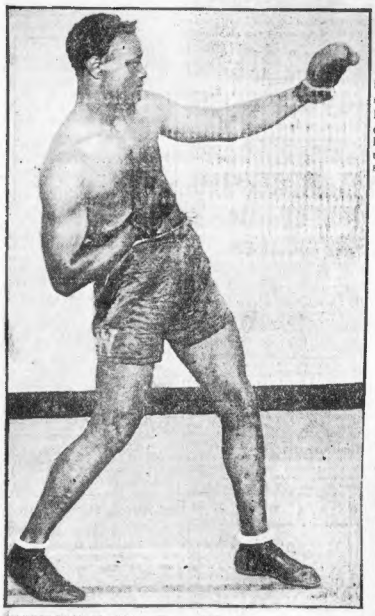

PUGNACIOUS PAUDEEN. Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, who wanted to hit Jack Dempsey during an argument at the office of the New York Boxing Commission recently. Paudeen called the heavyweight champion a liar.

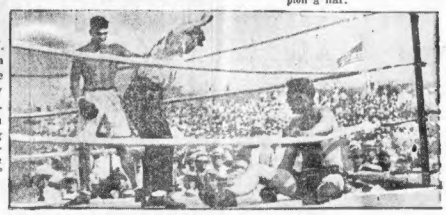

GIRL RIDERS. Misses M. and B. Machin going to weigh in for race at Chertsey, Eng. The race for lady riders was the feature of the Chertsey Bank holiday sports program.

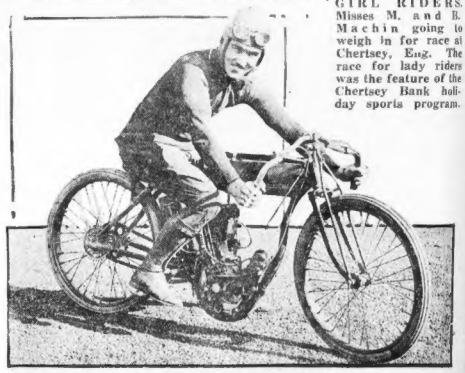

ON THE WAY TO HUB. Harry Wills, heavyweight sensation, who battles in a four-round exhibition bout at the Boston Arena Tuesday night. He has not given up hope of meeting Dempsey for the world's title.

PSYCHE'S BOW. Women archers on Bryn Mawr polo field compete in 46th annual archery shoot at Sesqui program. Miss Dorothy D. Smith of Boston is defending her title in this tournament. The archers are sure-fire "markswomen."

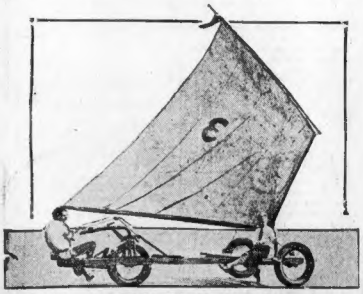

DEMPSEY WINS TITLE! This, however, was back on July 4, 1919, in case you don't remember. Photo shows Jess Willard, defeated champion, sitting in the ring following the Dempsey punch which spelled the end of his reign. The fight was held in Toledo. Jack has held the title for seven years, the last three being inactive.

RACING DEMON. Stratton Spencer, one of the daredevils of motorcycle racing, who will race on the board track at Salem, N. H., today. Though the competition for this year's race is keen, this lad, because of his daring and desire to win, is looked upon as a probable winner.

JINXED? Riding his best year, Frank Keenan of Revere has finished second more times than any other rider. He is well along toward being the world's best bike artist, but has met with a lot of bad breaks.

LIKE SISTER LIKE SISTER. Helen Mearis, youthful B. S. A. swim star, gives promise of equalling the record of her versatile sister, Katherine. Helen recently defeated Anna Baum of Connecticut.

LURED BY LUCRE. Bill Murphy, last year's football captain at Boston University, who starred for three years as an end on the Red and White eleven, has signed to play this Fall with the Boston team of the American Professional Football League. He should be a valuable addition to the local lineup.

The ocean races run annually by the Boston Yacht club will be held on August 28. This year's entry is the largest ever received.

COURT BALKS POLICE ON SUNDAY GAMES AT PHILLY

LAW RULES TO PERMIT CONTESTS

Athetics and White Sox to Meet in First Test of Edict Rendered in 1794

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Professional baseball may be played in this city on Sundays free from police interference, unless a breach of the peace occurs at the game or a nuisance is created, under an opinion handed down today by Judge Frank Smith in Common Pleas Court.

The decision provides, however, that there shall be no restraint on the Mayor or police officials in enforcing the Sunday law of 1794, thus permitting the arrest Monday or other week days of those conducting the games and their prosecution under the old law, the violation of which is punishable by a fine of $4.

Arrangements for a test game tomorrow have been completed and Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Americans, said that the Athletics would meet the Chicago White Sox at Shibe Park in the first Sunday professional game ever played in Philadelphia.

Under Judge Smith's opinion, which granted the Athletics an injunction restraining Mayor Kendrick from ordering police to interfere with the contest, the residents of the vicinity of Shibe Park, if they believe their right to quiet and undisturbed religious worship are encroached upon as a result of the game, may bring action in a court of equity for the abatement of a nuisance.

"In the event of a breach of peace arising out of the conduct of the game," added the decision, "proper action could be taken by the police department.

"The special injunction is hereby granted until final hearing against Mayor Kendrick, Director of Public Safety Elliott and their subordinate officers restraining them from stopping or interfering in any manner with the said game of baseball to be played at the Greater Shibe Park on Sundays, beginning August 22, 1926, and thereafter, or arresting on Sundays any of the participants of the said baseball games or persons engaged in any manner in the conduct of said baseball games, unless a breach of the peace shall occur; provided, however, that this shall have no effect upon the right of the said Mayor or the police officials of the city of Philadelphia from enforc[illegible] provisions of the act of April 22, 1794."

RETAIL TITLE TO BE DECIDED

Plans have been completed for the championship series between the first and second place teams of the Retail Store Baseball League to be played at Fenway Park starting on Wednesday, August 25. The second game will be played on Friday, August 27, and if a third game is necessary to determine the winner the final game will be played the following Monday. Fenway Park has been made available for this play-off through the courtesy of Bob Quinn, Red Sox president.

The Filene band of thirty pieces will be present to play at the opening game which will start at 6 o'clock sharp on Wednesday night. Two of the regular Retail Store League umpires will officiate. Wide interest has been attracted to this championship series, and special arrangements are being made to handle the transportation of the fans of the competing stores.

TOURNEY PLAY DANGEROUS AT WOODLAND

By BILL GRIMES

Although the recent three-day Woodland Golf Club tournament demonstrated once again that the Auburndale open is one of the most popular in New England, it also brought to the notice of the members that the present arrangement of play is exceptionally dangerous in tournament play.

The danger zone is between the sixth green and the seventh tee. In order to reach the seventh tee, the players must either walk along a path along the brook or back up the sixth fairway. True there is a directing arrow to the proper way to traverse this route, but not one out of twenty players take the proper route. They do not see the arrow. Their minds are occupied with what they did or failed to do on the last hole or what they are going to do on the next one.

This hazardous trip was protested against from the first time the new holes were proposed. The members brought to the attention of the committee that the trip was not only dangerous but far too long. For some time, and possibly this idea is still being entertained, it was the intention of the committee to shorten up the sixth hole so as to do away with the danger and also eliminate the long walk.

This move would ruin one of the best holes on the course and in no way improve the seventh and eighth, which have as yet failed to create any comment. The seventh is not a bad golf hole, but there is nothing to get excited about regarding the eighth, for it is just a golf hole.

Helen Wills Attains Crest in Contest For Popularity

HELEN WILLS, America's tennis queen, although forced to default her title this year, may be somewhat compensated as she has swung into the lead in the Hearst Popularity Contest by rolling up a total of more than four thousand points since yesterday. The California girl now has 13,724 points, which give her a lead of 122 over Babe Ruth, who was leading at the last count.

Helen has lead since the start in New England, but this is the first time she has taken a nationwide lead. Ruth's total is 13,612, and the Sultan of Swat is followed by Gertrude Ederle, who has progressed rapidly since her sensational Channel swim until she now boasts of 11,642 points, enough to give her a secure third position.

Red Grange is next with but 9,573, and then Dick Howell, whose Chicago landslide made him the leader for more than a week, trails in fifth place with 7,655 points.

The point system of counting allows three points for a first place vote, two for a second, and one for a third. The athlete amassing the greatest total of points will be adjudged the winner.

Remember that the winners in each separate branch of sport also come in for prize awards, and don't forget the prizes to be presented the voters who contribute the best 50 word letters telling why their selections were made.

In the New England counting Helen continues her gain over Babe Ruth, the girl having 856 votes to 796 for the ball star. Bobby Jones, Glenna Collett, are next, while Jack Dempsey has taken fifth place from Gertrude Ederle. The heavyweight has accumulated 258 votes to 166 for the fair natator.

BUILDING NEW GOLF COURSE ON LONG ISLAND

New York, Aug. 21.—A new championship golf course, which promises to be the most perfect in the Metropolitan District, is now under construction at Douglaston, near Bayside, Long Island. It will be known as the North Hills Golf Club and will represent an investment of about $1,000,000 when it is officially opened early next year.

The new organization has just been established by members of the well known Belleclaire Golf and Country Club of Bayside. The latter will pass out of existence at the close of the current season due to the fact that its property has been sold to a prominent local real estate concern for an exclusive residential development.

WILLS COVERS GLOVE SCANDAL IN GOTHAM

This is the eighteenth of a series of articles written by Harry Wills exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By HARRY WILLS

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE Clem Johnson bout in Madison Square Garden was an instance of a plot that went wrong. At that time I had just filed my formal challenge to Dempsey with the Boxing Commission and the match was hot.

Before several other bouts I had been warned that there was a scheme to disqualify me. This time the warnings from persons on the inside became so strong that I would have withdrawn from the match if I could have done so without getting in bad with the commission.

Harry Wills

I had knocked Johnson out easily some time before and I knew he was no match for me, but it is hard to fight a referee as well as your opponent and when I stepped into the ring that night I was more nervous than I had ever been when facing Langford or any of the dangerous men I had fought.

HARRY BANS INFIGHTING.

From the start I decided not to do any infighting, so the referee could not think of an excuse to disqualify me.

Every time we came into a clinch and Johnson held me, I would hold both arms out at right angles or straight up in the air to show that I was not holding.

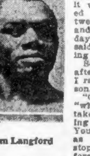

At that the referee kept barking at me all the time. It was plain even to the boys in the gallery that he was after my scalp, and the crowd began to hoot him for his one-sided work.

Someone, who was in on the scheme to get me in bad, substituted another pair of gloves for the regular mitts. The pair they handed me were hardly big enough for a bantam.

They were so small I could not close my fist, and in the first round this caused me to hurt my left hand so badly that I could not use it again. In the second I hurt my right.

JOHNSON IN RARE FETTLE.

Johnson was trained for the right of his life that night and with two bad hands I was lucky to stop him at all. As it was, he lasted until the twelfth round and the next day the papers said I was losing my punch.

Sam Langford

Some time after that bout I ran into Johnson.

"Clem," I said, "why did you take such a beating that night? You might just as well have stopped long before you did because you never had any chance to beat me and you must have known that."

"Harry," he said, "I'm damn sorry I didn't quit for that beating ruined me. I have not been myself since. But a certain person promised me $1,500 if I went the limit with you and I wanted to earn that money."

The trouble I had with Bill Tate out in Portland, Oregon, was the result of the propaganda against me. I knew that Tate would do a lot of holding, so when the match was made I insisted on straight rules. That means that you must protect yourself at all times.

COLLEGES SET FOR GRIDIRON WORKOUTS

By STED CHANDLER

If you will stop long enough in the midsummer rumble of sport you will sense an intangible but vibrant murmur which heralds the approach of another year of football. And if you will stop and consider, you will realize how short the time is before that murmur will develop into a brazen tumult to drown all other sounds in the athletic scale.

New England's 1926 gridiron machines will swing into action in a short three weeks, when they start gathering for the first easy training exercises on the strenuous Fall program.

But even before our own local outfits don the moleskins once more Jack Keady's powerful Marine eleven will arrive at Durham, the home of the University of New Hampshire, to begin work towards another Service championship.

The Marines start their labors September 1, the first to fight, as usual.

One week later, Middlebury and Brown get down to work, the latter squad converging upon Quonset Point for its annual encampment, which is this year to see an innovation with the entire personnel called upon to report. Strenuous work is ahead under the new Brunonian mentor, Tuss McLaughry, late of Amherst.

The following day Boston College gridders assemble at the Heights, again under Major Frank Cavanaugh, Providence College opens its season, and probably Ed Robinson and Reggie Brown will put their new charges at Boston University through their preliminary paces.

September eighth is a big day, with Bowdoin, Amherst and New Hampshire definitely opening, and the tentative plans of the other Maine colleges, Maine, Colby and Bates, together with Williams, calling for first practice sessions also.

Upon the fifteenth the middle of the month, the Big Three, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, according to their agreement, will bring out the pigskins, and on that day also the Big Green Menace, Dartmouth, probably will start on its way. Advices from Hanover state that Jess Hawley's cohorts will be at large by the middle of the month, which is taken to mean not later than the fifteenth.

The "feel" is in the air. A brief fortnight and it will begin to materialize.

Kearns Tells Inside Story of Dempsey's Shelby Battle

THIS is the thirty-sixth chapter of Jack Kearns' thrilling story in which he replies to the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Jack Dempsey on the pugilistic map tells of his experiences when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

I HAD never heard of Shelby, Montana, and I don't think many people had up to the time they came out for the Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

I'd punched cows and driven jerk line mule teams all over Montana but on the level, I'd never heard of Shelby.

Jack Kearns

At the next station I got another wire from Pollock saying that Collins and Malumby had taken to the plane again and were flying to Chicago and would meet me there. When I got off the train at Chicago, Collins and Malumby were there to meet me.

Malumby got right down to cases. He represented a hustling little oil town. He said they had plenty of dough and were willing to spend it if they could only get that fight to boost their wells. They knew of no better way of putting Shelby on the map.

"We're only a cow town, but we've got big oil wells and they're gushing. We want to be known and we'll put the fight on as our big advertisement.

"We have Gibbons signed. We want Dempsey. Here's a certified check calling for $10,000 if you sign. We will give you $300,000 for your end and $10,000 for expenses. This check is yours if you sign now. In ten days we will give you $100,000 in cash and the second $100,000 one month before the fight and the final $100,000 three days before the fight."

"I don't see how I can go wrong on that," I told him. "The only thing that bothers me is that I never heard of Shelby and I've been all over Montana."

AGREEMENT SIGNED.

I drew up an agreement. I was to get the check for signing, $100,000 ten days later in New York and the other payment as stated. If they failed to make good any of the payments, it was agreed that I would keep any money I had received.

"And there'll be no fight otherwise," I warned him. I told them that I had several other good offers for the July 4 date and I couldn't afford to fool around on doubtful stuff.

He showed me letters from the Great Falls banks and Shelby banks, too. There was no kidding about that certified check. The Great Falls bank wired New York and the first $100,000 was deposited in trust.

I got a wire from the Great Falls bankers asking me to come out and get things started for them. I advised them to take Mike Collins in and they put Mike in charge.

A few days later I left for Shelby. I expected to see a great bustling town and I nearly fainted when I saw the place. There was a station, and little else. A few scattered houses and the rest tents.

There was nothing else there but you could hear the hammers going. They were building up to the fight at least. I never saw houses go up so fast.

When I landed at the station I was met by a crowd of cowboys, Indians, well diggers and a three piece band, consisting of a trobone, a violin and a squeeky flute. In their earnestness they were blowing their brains out.

There didn't seem to be more than twenty persons in that reception committee. Mayor Johnson, one of the promoters, was there and the boys from the Chamber of Commerce.

A PICTURESQUE CROWD.

Everybody carried a forty-five on his hip and money was in every pocket. I went down from Shelby to Great Falls, met backers of the show among the bankers and went over the details again.

I was repeatedly told that I had nothing to worry about, that they could buy and sell fifty such fights. They wanted to put Shelby on the map. After closing with them I went back to Salt Lake.

Back again to Shelby I arranged for Dempsey's camp. Gibbons was at Shelby and I pitched our camp three miles out of Great Falls. Then back to Shelby. It certainly had taken on some speed. It was a regular little town now, buildings going up every minute and everybody smoked up over the coming fight.

(Copyright, 1926, The Christy Walsh Synd.)

In Monday's article Kearns brands Mayor Jim Johnson of Shelby as the world's champion staller, and tells the inside story of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

Stars to Box at Charity Show

The annual Field Day of the Catholic Charity Bureau at Sunset Point, Nantasket, will have an added attraction in the form of exhibition boxing bouts, with many of the local ringsters performing.

Those who have expressed their willingness to box are Lou Bogash, one of the leading middleweights of the country; "Rocky" Stone, Frank O'Day, Frank Kelley, Tommy Clayton, Jim Scully, Vic Maddona, Ray Cross and Johnny Vacca. Ray Cross, who recently injured his arm, will referee the contests.

The Catholic Bureau every summer gives to some six hundred or more youngsters a happy vacation on their Nantasket grounds.

Although there will be numerous other sports, the committee has made a great effort to secure some of the chief fistic attractions in this section.

CHESS MASTERS GATHER FOR TITLE TOURNAMENT

Chicago, Aug. 21 (A.P.). — The top floor corridors of the Hotel La Salle were enveloped today in the tense quiet of the Western Chess Association's annual championship tournament. Champions of the United States, Mexico and Hungary were among thirteen regional titleholders in the championship competition, while thirty aspirants to sectional amateur crowns carried on in a lower fight tournament. Play will continue through September 2.

Frank J. Marshall, United States champion; Carlos Torre, Mexican title-holder, and Geza Maroczy, ranking master of Hungary, are the prime movers of the tournament

BALTIMORE CLUB TRAILS INT. LEAGUE LEADERS

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Leadership in the International League has gone from "pole to pole," or from Baltimore to Toronto, and Dan Howley's Maple Leafs, only Canadian team in Class AA or major league baseball, appear strong for the final rush.

Toronto has been outhit by three other clubs in the circuit, according to averages issued today, but has done better at the plate than Baltimore. Rochester leads in team batting with a percentage of .304. Buffalo is second with 3.02 and Newark has an even .300.

DAVIS BREAKS MOTORCYCLE RECORD AT ROCKINGHAM

8,000 SEE RACE MEET OF POPPERS

Threatening Weather Cools Ardor of Fans at Speedway Motorcycle Contests

Rockingham, N. H., Aug. 20.—Jim Davis established a new American Motorcycle Association record for 45 cubic inch displacement motors this afternoon at the Rockingham Speedway when he negotiated the five mile national championship in 2.59 1-5. In accomplishing this feat Davis was forced to travel at the rate of 101 miles per hour.

Curley Fredericks led at the completion of the first lap but gave way to Jones on the second trip around. Jones was forced out by motor trouble, and Davis, driving an Indian, spurted into a lead which he kept and increased until the end, flashing across the finish line ahead of Johnny Seymour on another Indian and Minnick on a Harley-Davidson.

Eight started in the four-lap five mile race which opened the program. These were Joe Petral of Los Angeles, Johnny Seymour of Springfield, Jim Davis of Columbus, William Minnick of Wilmington, Del., Bob Sakegian of Pasadena, Curley Fredericks of Denver, Edgar B. Jones of Worcester and C. E. Merrill of Lowell.

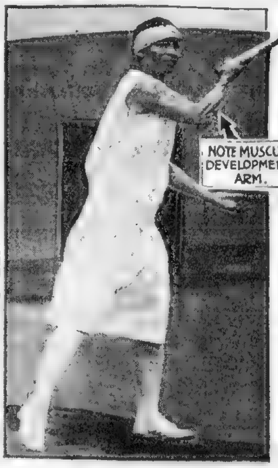

The [illegible] and the general confusion of starting [illegible] by sporadic [illegible] of encouragement from the [illegible] provided [illegible] that failed to [illegible] the [illegible] of the meeting [illegible] of false starts delayed the proceedings the better part of a half hour.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 saw America's foremost motorcycle speed specialists race in the finals of the national championship motorcycle series.

The first of the seven scheduled races was the five mile open for cars of 45 inch motor displacement.

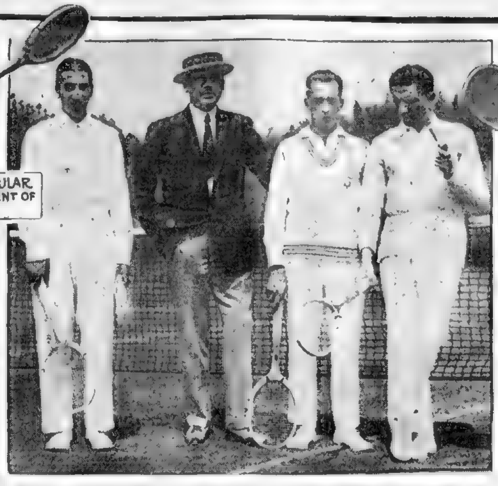

Although the weather conditions at the start of the meeting were ideal, heavy clouds banking in the east indicated that a storm might develop before the proceedings ended.

OUTLAW LEAGUE ON BASEBALL HORIZON

Baltimore, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—According to Bernie Moan, former business manager of the Baltimore and Newark International League clubs, a third major league calling itself the Mutual League, will begin operation next season.

The circuit will be comprised of eight clubs, four in the East and four in the West, similar to the big league arrangement.

Franchises will be placed in four International league cities for the Eastern portion, while the Western half will be taken care of by the cities now represented by only one major team.

Simultaneous with Moan's statement came confirmation from Pittsburgh, which will be one of the Western cities. Pittsburgh seems to have made more progress than the other prospects, a park already having been obtained there.

It is claimed the Pittsburgh Club will have a better financial status than the old Pittsburgh Federal League team which interested several millionaires.

Moan discussed the new league with several International league owners at a meeting here August 8. Lawrence Solman, president of the Toronto Club, and Sam Robertson, president of the Buffalo Club, attended the meeting, and Sam Wiedrick, owner of the Rochester Club, and Charles David, operator of the Newark Club also have been approached. Moan declares all these are in favor of the new organization.

One startling piece of news is that Baltimore, always supposed to be requesting admittance to a major league, is not to figure in the new circuit, at least at the start. Baltimore's poor support of its pennant winning International team is given as the cause.

Besides Pittsburgh the other western teams would be Cleveland, Cincinnati and Detroit. According to Moan, Warren Giles, president of the [illegible] would operate one of the western franchises. Apparently [illegible] International League.

A [illegible] is said to be ready [illegible] behind a franchise there. Advices from Pittsburgh say this will be turned down, as an attempt will be made to make a loop wholly a United States circuit.

In that event, Baltimore or the Borough of Queens, New York, will be considered for the eighth city. Robertson of Buffalo, who operated the Buffalo Federal League team, is in favor of placing a team on Long Island and another in Montreal.

Mueller to Rejoin Pirate Ball Club

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Walter J. Mueller, slugging Pitts-burgh Pirate outfielder, who retired from the game three years ago after an injury, again is to wear a Pirate uniform.

Mueller, at the request of the Pittsburgh Club, has applied to K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, for reinstatement and is expected to report here the latter part of next week. Mueller injured a vertebrae in his neck in the 1923 spring training season and retired. He has been keeping in condition, however, by playing semi-pro baseball in his home town of St. Louis.

WISE and OTHERWISE

by STED CHANDLER

THERE is a bill before the Massachusetts Legislature which would have the decisions of each judge announced to the fans at boxing bouts. As it now stands, usually an announcer collects the ballots of the two judges and the referee and sweeps his arm in the general direction of the winning fisticuffer.

There are many fights in which a close decision arouses a great deal of controversy and no little excitement among the onlookers. If they see their candidate for the honors receiving none of their own pugilistic natures are stimulated, but they have no way of finding an exhaust other than cries of "Kill the judges!" and "Robber!"

They can in no way form a fair judgment, for all they know is the decaration. The proposed law would be fairer to fandom and would, as well, eliminate unjust decisions by judges who feel that they can get away with something because no one will know who to blame for the verdict.

"SKINNY" REDINGTON, former Tabor star whose Dartmouth career was cut short, has been turning in some nice twirling for Filene's in the Boston Retail Store League. Although he started off as a third string moundman, he finished the season second only to the stellar Pete Whittemore of Gilchrist's.

In the final game he fanned thirteen, allowed but one hit and contributed a homer on his own account. During the season he ran up an imposing total of strikeouts and included a couple of three-hit games in his record in spite of the fact that his team met with only fair success and finished fourth in the league standing.

Semi-pro teams in Greater Boston could do worse than to search the Store League for material.

HELEN WILLS has taken the lead in the Sports Popularity Contest now being conducted by Hearst newspapers throughout the country. The California tennis star has rolled up a large total of points to top other favorites such as Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Bobby Jones and Gertrude Ederle.

It is a good test of popularity to obtain a lead in a nationwide contest immediately after defaulting one's title. It is a good test for Helen to win, anyway, for she is by nature retiring and subject to no popularity craze such as affects many stars.

But she is also by nature popular and may be ranked as one athlete with the ingrained knack of attracting the general good will with the same ease and grace which mark her prowess on the courts. The brand, as we have said before, of a thoroughbred.

TILDEN WINS MEADOW CLUB NET TILT

Meadow Club, Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—William T. Tilden 2nd of Philadelphia added one more trophy to his large collection when he defeated Brian I. C. Norton of Dallas, Tex., in the final of the invitation singles at the Meadow Club today.

The match went to four sets, the scores running 6—4, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5.

Norton went out in front, 2—0, to start the first set and kept his advantage all the way to 4—2. Service aces helped Tilden [illegible] lead at 5—4, and in the tenth game he broke through service after a prolonged deuce struggle.

Tilden won his first and second services in the next set and the score was 2-all. Norton broke through the champion's service in the fifth and ninth games and by bearing down on service in the tenth game won the set 6—4.

Tilden broke service [illegible] the second game of the third set and went ahead 2—0. Norton rallied sharply, however, and tied the score at 2-all.

The next three games were won by Tilden, who was playing [illegible] now. Norton staved off defeat for two games, bringing the score to 5-4. But Tilden broke through at love in the tenth to finish out the set.

Ticket Discloses Rickard's Aim for Dempsey-Wills Duel

New York, Aug. 21 (I.N.S.).—The Daily Mirror today printed a facsimile of a ringside ticket, calling for a seat at a proposed Dempsey-Wills match to have been held at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, on September 6, 1924, under the auspices of Tex Rickard.

The ticket was reproduced as evidence of Rickard's intention to give Wills a chance at the title and as proof of the promoter's oft-repeated claim that he had been "called off" the mixed match.

"Who told Rickard not to stage that fight?" the Mirror asks.

The ticket, said to be the lone survivor of 90,000 which since have been destroyed, was personally given the paper's representative by Rickard, the Mirror declared. It plainly names Dempsey and Wills as the opponents, the date of the bout, Rickard as the promoter, the location of the seat and its price, which was $27.50.

Finnegan-Chapman Tussle Meets Postponement

THE Red Chapman-Honeyboy Finnegan boxing bout scheduled for next Thursday night at Braves Field has been postponed indefinitely as disclosed exclusively by the Boston Evening American yesterday.

Chapman suffered injuries in the bout with Eddie Lord at Hartford [illegible] last Tuesday night, which necessitated temporary postponement.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. said: "The Chapman-Finnegan fight is off for the present. More than likely the two feather weights will get together in about two weeks at Braves Field."

Goodwin also said: "There would be no show next Thursday, and the talk that's going about is all wrong that the club officials are proposing to ring in some other opponent to meet Finnegan."

Chapman received a chest injury while boxing Lord, and since he resumed training he reported that he was unable to do his best, and requested the Suffolk A. A. management to put the show over.

This brought out a strong protest on the part of Dan Carroll, Finnegan's manager, who accused the Chelsea battler of running out of the match with his "Honeyboy." It is said.

Manager Cardio and Chapman's brothers took the matter up with the Suffolk A. A., and it was decided to have Chapman examined. "Red" was taken to Dr. Somers Frazer, who had an X-ray made. The X-rays showed that Chapman was suffering from bruises.

FIVE HAPPY ON A BUDGET OF $1,287

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds

Budget Chat No. 134.
By MARTHA LEE

I SHUT my eyes, opened my hand and grabbed into a pile of especially interesting Budget letters and pulled out a real plum to share with you

A letter from a skilled mechanic in a village in the northern part of Massachusetts is the plum. He is 30 years old. His wife is 27 and they have three children, 6, 4 and 2 This man comes of industrious, capable farmer stock and for his education had one year in high school. His wife also is of educated and industrious parents, and had a high and normal school education.

She was a teacher when they were married. She now does practically all the housework and sewing with the help of a schoolgirl mornings and nights She is a devoted and intelligent mother who gives a great deal of thought and time to the training of the children They are healthy and bright. They will receive all the educational advantages that they are willing to absorb.

This family had a pretty good start on their housekeeping, as the wife inherited $2,000. At the beginning of their honeymoon they were well supplied with clothing and their house was all furnished clear of mortgage They have been budgeting zealously and I have compiled their expenses into the following table. Their income is $1,287 77.

The social life of this family centres around their church and relatives who live nearby. They are perfectly contented. Three generations of the father's family have lived in this same small town and their social standing is excellent.

They have been able to make considerable savings and their financial outlook is excellent. This Budget shows how easily success may be obtained, especially if one gets a good start in life and practices habits of thrift from the first.

One great advantage to this family is that their standard of living is one established by many of their neighbors who enjoy approximately the same incomes. They give great credit to Budget for their success.

The coupon on this page is to enable you to send for your Budget sheet with as little inconvenience as possible. Maybe you think that your neighbor who is budgeting is able to spend a little less freely for amusements than you do, but when opportunity knocks at his door and he is able to respond to the call for a moderate investment in a business of his own, I guarantee that you'll be wishing that you had been as foresighted and joined the ranks of Budgeters.

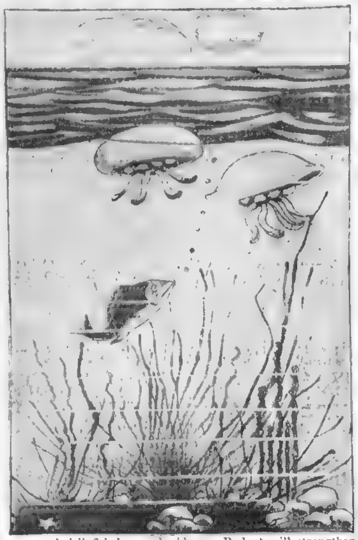

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS:

Mrs. M F. J. writes that her income is $46 40 weekly. Her expenses have been 41 per cent. for food or $8 3 24 per cent. for shelter or $51, 10 per cent for operating or $20 82, 10 per cent. for savings, personal is per cent [illegible] $31 .3, making a total per month of $208 24. Has a few debts to be cleared off.

Pay $45 a month rent, carfare $4 a month, fire insurance $14 every three years, burglary insurance $10 a year, gas $13 to $14 every two months, water $10 78 every six months. Just ordered coal amounting to $103. Is not able to save a cent except insurance. Four adults and three children in the family from four years to one year.

Thank you for all the kind things you say in your letter about the budget talk. They tell us that an imperfect budget is better than no budget at all. I really think a standard budget will come a little closer to your needs.

Uncle Sam tells us that for your size family $17.50 is about the minimum food allowance. This would leave you $5 for savings including insurance, $9 50 weekly for shelter and business carfares, $5.50 for clothing, $6 for operating and $5 50 for personal. Back bills are supposed to be paid out of personal. You will have a little surplus under operating which you will need under your shelter allowance.

A jellyfish has no backbone. Budget will strengthen your determination to start a savings account.

Practical Hints on Spending by a Plan

Home Budget Editor,
Boston Evening American
Enclosed please find a two-cent stamp for which please send me one of your Home Budget forms:

Write or Print Very Plainly

Mrs. A. W. has an income of $22 a week. Pays $25 a month rent with no carfares. Family of two adults and two children. Only savings is $1 30 weekly insurance. Rent is $6 25 weekly, payment on back bills $3, church 30c oil 90c, laundry $1. This leaves $10.25 which she would like help in apportioning. Uses 10 quarts of milk at 14c, 10 loaves of bread at 12c.

Electric bill about $1 50 a month. Coke four tons at $14. Asks how much should be allowed for clothes and amusements. Pays about $10 weekly for food and would like to cut it to $8.

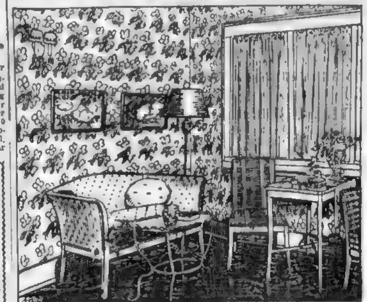

I am afraid the best Budget can do in cases where a small salary must cover the needs of a large family is to show how to apportion the income so that there is something, however little, for each of the necessities of life. Until Uncle Sam makes rubber money, I am afraid I cannot tell you how to do the impossible.

In your own case, no less authority than this same Uncle Sam tells us that a minimum food allowance would be $10.50 a week including milk and husband's lunches. This leaves you only $1.30 for savings, $2.45 for shelter, $2 45 for operating, $2.45 for clothing and $1.70 for personal. You are still short $1.65 on your shelter fund as well as short on personal. Eight dollars a month should be allowed for coke and 15 per cent. of your total income for clothing. Amusements come out of personal and should not exceed $6 75 a month.

The only solution to your problem that I can see is to find some way to increase the income.

Furnishing the Home

By Marian Moore

"JUST one moment, please, while we interrupt," say the pictures to the clamorous pattern on this gaily flowered wallpaper.

It's a risky thing to do—but it is often done most successfully, this combining of pictures with aggressively patterned wallpaper. In this case, the pictures of white chickens, in among the foliage and blossoms of the wallpaper are quite in keeping.

There is a general air of flowering and Summer here, in the light and dainty furniture, the gay upholstery and the cool, shiny floor.

A safe and invariably effective way to paper a room is in something that will be a good background for pictures some neutral shade of paper without a pattern, or with an unobtrusive one

For after all, walls are really the background not only for the furnishings of the room, but also for the events and thoughts of the human beings there.

And it is usually out of keeping to have a background which stifles both personality and thought

There are many papers, in soft buff shades, or in deep ivory, or even in gentle grey or grey blue (if one likes a cool effect). The general rule for figured papers is that they shall be subdued in pattern, so that the racket of color and design will not deafen those trying to speak or think in that room.

Mirrors in quiet, carved frames are sure to be a wise decoration in rooms having vividly figured wallpaper

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

DO you know how it changes the whole long day when your footfall chances to pass this way? Why, the sunbeams strangely grow far more bright and the task that was heavy is then but light. All the care that has vexed me fades and pales like the last faint glimmer of outbound sails, and over the old, familiar things a glamour lies and a glory clings. Down the street, once dull to my heedless glance, I can glimpse the passage of fair romance, while a deeper meaning seems blossoming in the words men speak and the song they sing. Oh, a light must glow and a song must sound on the path which your presence has blessed and crowned till you know how it changes the whole long day when your footfall chances to pass this way

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
We are good friends. Her birthday comes in the near future and flowers, I have decided, will be my choice of remembering it, but, which shall it be—a box of vari-colored roses (they are my favorites), one for each year, or just a bouquet of flowers? Or, what would you suggest?

I want to tell you that I would not miss your column for anything, as it certainly helped me out a number of times and I sure appreciate it.
JIMMIE.

WELL, now, my dear sir, that is a difficult question, for it is all a matter of personal taste. I'm afraid that I don't agree with you about vari-colored roses, even though your sentiment about each shade representing a separate year of her life. I like roses all of one shade; they seem to me much more effective and beautiful than the variegated shades. And most girls love the pale yellow roses that are so especially lovely now. What do you think of sending those? Or would you be interested in the suggestion of having your florist make one of the charming old-fashioned bouquets, the ones made of tiny flowers of pastel shades, tightly packed in rows? They can be most beautiful

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I've been going about for over a year with a girl who told me she loved me We both laid our hands on the Bible and swore that we would not go with anyone else.

One evening when I was calling at her home another young man called. She excused herself and went walking with him and didn't return until 11:30 Another evening when I called she was entertaining still another young man. They were sitting on the sofa together, with all the lights out except one which was turned very low

I have grown to love her, and it hurts me when she does such things. What is your advice regarding this matter?

HAVE a friendly talk with her. Tell her you realize that she does not care to be held to the promise she made you.

It is much wiser, you knew, for you both to go about with all of your friends, both girls and young men, until you become formally engaged if ever you do

If Mother Is Active Rival to Her Daughter

By LUCY LOWELL.

SHE was "coming out"—at last! And her deb party was to be a really swank affair—such an affair as had gained mother her reputation as the "best hostess"

Now that she was ceasing to be "that Thompkins youngster," with Mother's laughing but eternal "No, daughter—not sister'" ringing in her ears, maybe she, too, might become popular like Mother!

Anyway, she told herself with a blush that handsome Bob Slattery who always was hanging around Mother's tea table would at least see her now!

Mother came in then, and kissed her. Mother, slim and graceful in black velvet.

"Out of deference to you, my child," laughed Mother. "Now, since I've a debutante daughter, I must go through some of the motions of being an old lady! I do want you to be a success, Darling."

They went down the stairs to the party. And it was very gorgeous.

The debutante told herself, "Think of all these lovely people coming to see ME!" And she was radiant.

Still there was something about it. The "older set," for example, always spoke of her in the third person, quite as if she weren't there. And they called her "Mary Thompkins' daughter"

And Bob Slattery—well, he danced with her. Once. He cut in on Mother often enough.

The evening was half over when Peggy realized that she was sitting in a corner practically alone. Most of the men of the party—and all the young ones were crowding in another corner. A rival debby? No, Mother! Smiling, scintillating, flirting a little. Having the time of her life.

Peggy fled. Her dearest friend found her later, weeping bitterly. "But your mother really means well," said the friend, trying to be a comfort. "And she's so beautiful—and so astonishingly young!"

"I wish she were old as—as anything—and ugly! I do!" wailed Peggy. "Maybe I'd stand a chance if she were'"

"But a lot of us girls have to put up with this [illegible] tion," mused the friend.

"Yes—darn 'em'" said Peggy.

Martha Lee's Reliable Pointers and Recipes

GREETINGS, everybody!

Don't you dislike to have bowls and plates of odds and ends cluttering your ice chest? I think they are the bane of the housewife's life, always taking up too much room, being taken out, put back, shoved around and finally thrown out in exasperation.

But there is a solution to that problem, a very delicious one. Green peppers—half a dozen peppers make all the difference between a tasty dish of left-overs, and that familiar mixture which is generally greeted with a disgusted "Hash again!" You will never have any trouble in using up Sunday's roast, or the last hard nubbles of ham if you tuck them into green peppers. cover with seasoned bread crumbs and adorn with a few sprigs of parsley.

Chop the meat fine and season with some chopped onion and celery, and if there is not enough meat, add bread crumbs or boiled rice to stretch it out. Dot with butter, enough to moisten, and bake in the oven for thirty to forty minutes. Chicken and rice served in this way are wonderfully good.

Peppers stuffed with Spanish rice is another dish which always calls for an encore in my family, and deviled ham, mixed with a cup of cold boiled rice, a little salt and paprika, touched up with a teaspoonful of minced onion and a tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce, makes one of those combinations that melt away before you know it.

Minced green pepper is a decided addition to any salad, especially that one with a few beans, a potato or two, yesterday's beets and lettuce leaves—the usual ice-chest clearance salad which occurs at least once a week. Add a little minced pepper and onion juice, and call in a few guests to admire your art in salad making

In fact, the dextrous use of peppers increases one's reputation as a tasty cook at least twenty-five per cent. A little chopped green pepper added to your butter sauce when serving fish, a tablespoon or two in the vegetable or meat hash lifts them above the ordinary into epicurean dishes of note.

Add it to cream cheese when you make it into balls for salad, just before the final addition of butter.

Another particularly delicious salad is made by packing peppers with pimento cheese, chilling well and then slicing This gives that attractive cloverleaf appearance when resting on the lettuce leaves.

A popular way of using up cold boiled potatoes is to make them up into Potatoes O'Brien. To two cups of cold boiled potatoes cut in dice, add one coarsely chopped pepper. Try to select a pepper that is turning, so that it is half red and half green. This will add to the pictorial effect. Melt two tablespoons of shortening and simmer the pepper in the shortening over a low flame for about five minutes, then turn up your flame and add the potatoes. Brown well and serve piping hot. I like the chopped pepper added to creamed potatoes or lyonnaise potatoes almost as well.

A little minced green pepper improves most any sandwich filling. It is particularly nice with cream cheese, or chopped hard boiled eggs, and makes nearly every minced meat filling more interesting. Try it with chicken, ham or tongue.

To two cups of cooked corn cut from the cob add a minced pepper. Simmer the pepper in butter five minutes before adding the corn. Toss in the butter a while before serving, add a generous sprinkling of salt and paprika.

Have you ever tried onions and green peppers, equal parts of each, fried and served with a steak? It is simply "scrumptious" and also makes a marvelous omelet filling

Here is a luncheon dish which holds out a helping hand to old man Budget. Cut green peppers in halves, lengthwise. Remove the seeds and parboil in salted water for five minutes. Place a generous slice of American cheese on each green pepper shell and bake in a hot oven for thirty minutes. Serve on toast with a teaspoonful of tomato catsup on each serving.

From the Italians come the tasty tip of adding minced green pepper to spaghetti sauce. They also saute veal and green peppers, cut in strips in olive oil and then add tomato paste as a sauce. Served as an entree it is both hearty and good.

SAVORY CORN WITH VEGETABLES—Four tablespoons oil, four tablespoons grated onion, four tablespoons chopped green pepper, four tablespoons chopped pimento, four tablespoons chopped parsley, two cups corn, cut from cob; one-half cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, and a few grains of pepper

Place oil in frying pan and when hot, but not smoking, cook the onion, green pepper and pimento for five minutes. Do not brown. Add corn with the milk and seasonings. Simmer gently ten minutes. Serve sprinkled with finely chopped parsley

Yours for eliminating left-overs,

Martha Lee

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; a Mad Whirl of Adventure

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. A seeress tells her of the "wildness." She goes to New York in seek of adventure.

Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, in a lodging house, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin, movie star, attempts to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance. There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her.

With Kelvin hiding in her apartment Joslyn is called by the district attorney. She bests him. Police watch her flat.

Great luck comes to Joslyn. She is offered $250 per week as a dancer. Brierhalter asks her not to accept and offers her $500.

She borrows $5,000 from Lee Rogers to dress her dance. Brierhalter sees her home one night, forces his way into the flat and faces Kelvin. Joslyn stops a row by drinking something and crying, "Poison."

CHAPTER XXX.

WHATEVER motion was stirring in Kelvin's breast, Joslyn remained pleasantly relaxed, like a tired child. The lights in the intimate little living room were softly shaded.

"It's strange, but I'm beginning to feel almost peaceful," Kelvin said. "I suppose it's because that after a certain point has been passed the human mind grows more or less accustomed to strain. We've both been through enough to unhinge most people, but I'm so much in love with you, dear, that everything else seems almost—incidental."

Joslyn's eyes were heavy with drowsiness. "That's the way it ought to be on a deserted island, isn't it?"

"And we've repelled the first invader—Brierhalter. We've licked him, I hope. And yet——"

His voice was colored with uncertainty.

"When I think of him I shiver, no matter how tightly you hold me," Joslyn said, as a tired nervousness began to dispel her comfort. "I think he has been bluffed—that he'll leave us alone."

"It's a long chance we're taking, Joslyn, dear. But if I thought you were wrong I'd beat it away before he could tip the police."

"He may tell, Jim. We've got to face that possibility. If the fake suicide scared him off it's all to the good, for the present. If not, we're out of luck. This situation can't go on forever. We're not getting anywhere."

Kelvin shook his head thoughtfully, covered his eyes with his hands. "I don't know, dear . . . I don't know. When I have you in my arms——"

He bent his head and kissed her, but for the first time Joslyn sensed the lack of warmth in the caress.

"I don't want to be kissed any more," she said, unhappily. "It doesn't mean anything."

They looked at each other with dismal, balked eyes. "I have an odd feeling that tonight may be the last we'll spend together," he returned slowly. "There's something strange in the air. I love you more than ever, sweetheart, but there's something—missing. Something has got away from us. The sparks don't fly like they did. This night, at least, should be the best one of all, if we let tonight slide past us"——

"Why Do You Think It Might Be Our Last?" She Asked

"Why do you think it might be out last, Jim?"

"I don't know, dear. Maybe it's just an actor's hunch. I have a feeling that it's now or never between us—you understand? But, at the same time, there's a coldness around the heart. It's an ache, a sorrow, and it stifles everything I want to say."

"It's fear," she told him. "It takes the joy out of everything—even love."

"No, no, love is the biggest thing in the world, Joslyn. It triumphs over everything."

"The trouble is we don't know how much is love and how much is—well, just common human magnetism," she speculated. "The thrill and the kick of the kisses and the rest of it certainly aren't the real important things. We're both worrying about whether Brierhalter will send the police here—and that worry squelches out all our thrills and kicks. See, Jim?"

"Our thrills couldn't stand up against hunger even, or a toothache or a headache. We think we're in love and when we get worried and frightened—we can't put our hearts into it at all. We thought the kisses were diamonds, but they turn out to be just bits of glass—worthless."

"Love is more than that," he asserted.

"I believe you, Jim. But I don't know whether we've got the real thing—or a parody."

"Shall we make it the real thing?"

Joslyn hesitated. "How?"

"We can take a long chance and make a stab at a getaway together. We'll win or lose everything. If we hang around here much longer there'll be a big bust of some kind—it's in the air. And it's all right about the money. I just happened to remember that I've got a watch we can hock. It's platinum and cost nine hundred dollars. You can get four hundred on it—enough to take us a long, long ways."

"We'd be outcasts—hunted all our lives," she reflected. "We'd have to live under lying names. And poverty. That's the best we could hope for. The worst—we'd be caught—probably would be—with the sickening notoriety and everything."

"If you loved me you'd risk it."

"If I loved you," she declared, "I wouldn't. But I might if I was swept off my feet by—infatuation."

Whatever Kelvin's reply might have been, it was paralyzed by the heart-quaking crash of a splintering shoulder against the thin wood panel of the hall door. In one breathless instant the smash was repeated, the wood shivered and split, as a thick arm shoved through the aperture and unfastened the lock.

One Word Leaped to the Minds of Joslyn and Kelvin

One word leaped to the minds of Joslyn and Kelvin. Police!

With the instinct of a trapped animal Kelvin dashed for the only escape—the windows. A fragment of his cooler self asserted itself and he realized that he was three floors above the pavement.

"Don't jump!" Joslyn managed to cry with fear-stiffened lips.

"I'm caught!" he said, turning and looking at her his face blanched with excitement.

"Don't resist!" she had time to warn him swiftly. "Whatever happens I'll see you through—inside or outside."

The room, immediately, was crowded with strange, burly figures, hostile faces. Three revolvers, at least, covered Kelvin and Joslyn.

"Hands up, both of you!" The commanding voice was gruff with authority. "Don't be fool enough to try any monkey business, Kelvin!"

Joslyn, helpless, raised her hands with a despairing gesture. Slowly her face darkened with a stinging, angry tide of color.

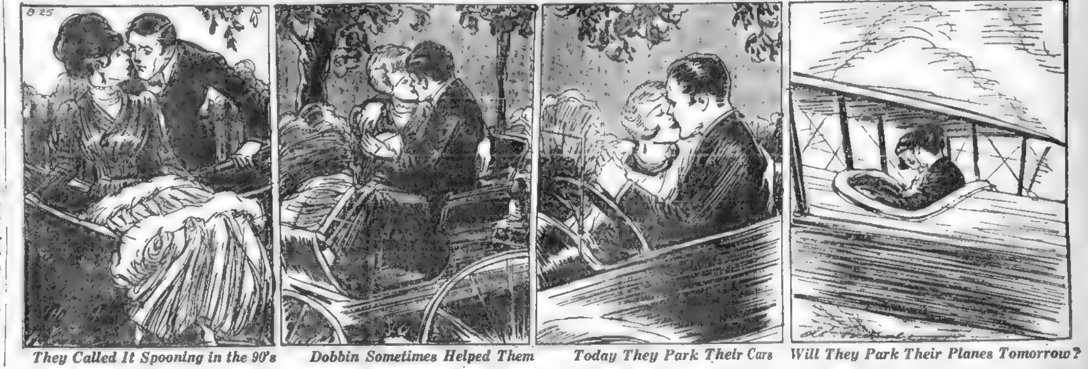

Coming through the door behind the others was Henry Brierhalter.

Beatrice Fairfax Discusses the Subject of Petting Parties

They Called It Spooning in the 90's — Dobbin Sometimes Helped Them — Today They Park Their Cars — Will They Park Their Planes Tomorrow?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

A DISCUSSION of promiscuous petting is being carried on by my correspondents. I shall present two especially bright letters today—one for and against.

The first letter is unsigned. "Gambler," to whom the writer refers, wrote a letter, printed some time ago, which claimed that promiscuous petting is not a detriment to a girl in winning a husband.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes my anonymous correspondent:

"My compliments to Gambler!

"I am a young but experienced flapper and I know what it's all about when I say men like the girl best who necks. Also, the girl likes to pet if she's with the 'sweet man.'

"What's wrong with the petting done today in parked autos, compared with that done in olden days in a stalled horse and buggy? The only difference is that then it was called romance, while today it's termed petting.

"Don't be an iceberg, girls. But then again, don't let any man form the wrong opinion of your petting. Draw the line and don't allow him to step over it."

Let me assure you of one thing, my dear: there were plenty of opportunities to pet in the days of the horse and buggy—it was called "spooning" then. There were girls then as now who petted with just about every man they knew, while other girls saved their kisses for the one man.

Here's another youthful and spirited letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I wish I had stopped to think at eighteen.

"My two chums and I went to an exclusive school. The boys we ran around with on our few free nights were nice boys.

"When we were graduated and had all the time in the world to do as we pleased, we just lost our heads, I guess. One year followed another, until, finally, we fell in love. One of us fell for a young man who had picked her up, who loved to drink, who kissed every girl he could.

"My other chum and I fell in love with the type of young man we had always dreamed about and didn't know existed any more. But neither of these young men was looking for our type of girl for a wife.

"So we began to balance our accounts. On the asset side, we each had our experience. On the liability side, the lost love and respect of the one man who counted. Promiscuous petting was not worth the price.

"The nicest boys pet, but they marry the girl who doesn't pet."

If you were one of the judges—which you really are which side would you say had won in today's debate?

The Making of a Husband, an Interesting Serial, By Ann Lisle

By ANNE LISLE

"YOU'RE showing what you considered her. Now you call her a servant pityingly. But until you began to worry about her, you looked down upon her—didn't you?"

Murmurs and shuffles and protests didn't daunt Jim, who answered his own questions.

"She worked hard. No one bothered about her. No one offered to get her the money to pay for an education or singing lessons. Arlette was a proud sensitive child. She knew her position was here. She inherited the pride of her mother, Rosine, who would never acknowledge her father—the poor old doctor who never dreamed how he had wronged his Berthe, Rosine's mother. Arlette didn't want Dr. Willis' money."

"Who says she were gwinter get it?" shouted someone.

"She were," announced Heasey. "Me and Mike McCandless witnessed the will that guv it to her."

"Arlette didn't know about her relationship to Dr. Willis until very recently," Jim went on. "She liked the old man. She was naturally attracted to him until he took Lingard to live with him. She liked Lingard. She trusted him."

"To her death, mebbe!" shouted some one, and the mob began to buzz angrily as it took up the shout.

"Shut up!" Jim yelled daringly. "That's bunk, and you darn well know it."

The buzz grew angrier for a moment, and then died down as Jim shouted:

"Arlette knew whom to trust. She was naturally smart. How do you know she didn't stage this whole business to make herself a heroine hereabouts? She had plenty of drama in her makeup. And look how things are working for her. She disappears. When she goes she is a little maid who works for Nick Perry. Now she is front-page news, and you folks are ready to tar and feather one man and string another up for fear this little nameless child you never did a thing for when she was here came to some harm from a couple of men who never wished her anything but good"——

"How do you know so darn much?" some one shouted.

"Didn't Nick Perry buy her the pretty dress she wore to May's wedding?" asked Jim.

The mob discussed this in surprised undertones. After a moment Jim went on:

"Nick also bought her the pretty traveling suit she coaxed him to get for a purpose. She had it in her mind to run away and make her name where it wasn't known that she had no name."

He paused dramatically at this point. Little sighs of agreement, loudly breathed exclamations that showed he was making the mob into a crowd that saw things his way, began to sound.

"Arlette isn't an injured heroine," Jim said curtly. "She is a clever little thing who got what she wanted—a suit from Nick, who, as you must remember, gave her a home—money to manage in the city from someone else—"

"Money!" shouted someone. "She were no huzzy taking money from men. And no man gives a pretty child like that money for any good purpose. Look at Lingard he cowering down as if he air scared cold. He give her the money. He knows where she air in the city. Let's give him a coat of tar and feathers and send him to Arlette."

"Wait," said Jim. "I gave Arlette the money to go make her fortune in the city. I gave her a hundred dollars!"

CHAPTER LVIII.

(Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.)

CASSIE was giving a party that afternoon.

"Hello, Merry," she greeted her younger sister. "You wanted to see me?"

Merry nodded uncertainly. Now that she was here, she wished that she had not come.

She had not seen Cassie in months, and suddenly it seemed to her as if Cassie were not her sister, but a stranger.

For Mrs. Morley Kaufman, these days, was a hard, glittering, expensive personage who looked as if she had been born with a gold spoon in her mouth. She did not look as if she had ever seen the little house on Mystic street.

She never came near her family, unless she and Morley happened to be having trouble.

"I'll tell you what you'd better do," she said now, unsmilingly. "You'd better run up to my room and wait until all these people have gone. It won't be more than half an hour."

She spoke to Merry as if she were a delivery girl, or a new housekeeper. Seemingly, it never occurred to her to take her own sister back into the roomful of women and introduce her to them.

"You'll find some magazines up there on the table beside my bed," she added, lightly, and turned to go back to her guests. As Merry started up the stairs she waved a hand at her and vanished.

"She might have asked me to have a cup of tea, at least," Merry thought bitterly, as she climbed the stairs.

It was six o'clock before Cassie finally came to her.

At thirty-three Cassie was sick and tired of almost everything she had. For the one thing she most wanted she could not have. She had married Morley Kaufman and she loved him—but she knew he did not love her, at all. He gave her the house and her car and her beautiful clothes, not because she was the woman he loved, but because she was Mrs. Morley Kaufman—and he wanted the world to envy his wife.

No one did envy her. For almost everyone knew that Morley made her wildly unhappy most of the time. Even Merry had heard stories of Morley's recent love affair with his beautiful blond private secretary.

"Well, Merry, I'm sorry I had to keep you waiting so long," Cassie said to her. "I thought those women never would go! And my head is aching—" Her voice died on a long tired sigh.

"Sometimes I wonder what it's all about," she sighed. "All the parties and the gossip and the clothes. Give me a cigarette, honey. Right there, in that silver box. Thanks."

She lit it, and then reached for the letter that Merry was holding out to her. Tony Gaines' letter.

"What's this?" she asked. Then, as she took a second look at it, a dull red flush crept slowly over her face and neck. Something like a shamed smile just touched her lips and then fled. She looked more like Cassie Locke, and less like Mrs. Morley Kaufman, than she had looked for years and years.

"Where did you get this?" she asked jerkily.

Merry knew that Cassie needed no answer to that question. But she gave her one, anyway.

"I found it stuffed down behind the mop-board in the hall of our house, this morning," she said quietly. "It hadn't dropped there. Someone had folded it carefully and put it there. Hidden it from me." She stopped.

Cassie's eyes were on the soiled, [illegible] envelope. Suddenly she raised them.

"I put it there," she confessed defiantly. "I thought it was the right thing to do—and I did it!"

"Why?" Merry was still cool and calm and collected. "Why did you think it was the right thing to do?"

Cassie blinked. "Why—why," she stammered, "because it was from Tony Gaines. I knew he never meant to marry you—and I hated to have him boast around to Morley that he had you on the end of his string. I—I—I wanted you to stick to Bill Erskine. He was crazy about you at that time. Don't you remember?"

Merry did not answer her. Not even [illegible] of her head. She just [illegible] looked at Cassie's flushed face.

"Why make such a fuss about it now, [illegible] all these years?" Cassie asked [illegible]. It was a silly thing [illegible] I know. But, after all what difference did it make? Tony Gaines never would have married you anyway. It would have been another [illegible] drawn-out affair like Bill Erskine's."

"Open the letter," Merry interrupted, "and read it."

But Cassie had no intention of reading the letter. Why should she? It was just like Merry, she said to herself, to make a mountain out of a molehill!

She flung the folded wad of envelope down upon the little French smoking stand beside her.

"Of course, I'm not going to read it, Silly!" she snapped. "Why should I read it? Suppose I did hide the thing? What difference did it make? If Tony Gaines had really wanted you, one little letter wouldn't have stopped him from taking you. Don't try to blame your troubles onto me! If you'd behave yourself you might have had some chance with him. But you were running around with Derrick Jones and Bill Erskine, too, at the time you were engaged to Tony. No man's going to stand for that sort of thing—" She went on talking, her words coming thick and fast, and high and shrill.

Merry got up, put her letter into her bag, and turned to go.

"No matter what I did, if I'd had that letter, everything would have turned out all right," she said quietly. "I guess you didn't realize that you were spoiling everything for me—spoiling my whole life—when you hid that letter did you?"

As she went she felt that if Cassie had spoiled her life's happiness, she had certainly managed to wreck her own life, too.

And there was nothing but pity for her in Merry's heart as she stood and looked at the proud house where Cassie waited every night for Morley to come home, sullen and resentful.

* * *

She came to a dead stop and looked again. It was! It was Tony Gaines' face looking out at her from the black and white page of the paper.

She picked the sheet up. Under Tony's picture was a cut line that read, "ANTHONY GAINES, ATTORNEY FOR MRS. RUCK."

Merry knew at once who "Mrs. Ruck" was. Her name had been on the front page of every newspaper in the United States for days and days. She was a Montana woman who had been arrested on a murder charge—on the charge of killing her own husband in a fit of rage over another woman.

Merry bought the paper. The sight of Tony's face filled her with longing and loneliness. She never felt so alone.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Lee Purcell returns to see Merry after an absence of six years. George Lee's hopes of marrying Merry are blasted. What comes between them? You will know in chapter 59 of "Tarnished Wings" on Monday.

Greater Movie Season Contest

Name the Star Whose Face Is Missing. Name the Movie From Which the Scene Is Taken

No. 6 The story has to do with the capture of a vicious whale. The star once played in a motion picture made from one of Robert Louis Stevenson's greatest stories.

SPECIAL CLUE FOR No. 13—This star married the sister of the star in Number 15.

By THE CONTEST EDITOR

The 28 sets of answers which are sent to New York, soon after the completion of the Greater Movie Season Contest, to be entered in competition for the National awards, will be, in the opinion of the local judges, the best 28 sets received by The Boston Evening American.

Every one of those competing New England sets will first have been awarded local prizes, the Mediterranean tour for two, $500 in gold, and scores of others.

Remembering that each of the 55 co-operating theatres has made an offering of five annual courtesy cards of admission, as its contribution towards the greater success of a Greater Movie Season, we find that the local, or Boston Evening American, prizes really number 297.

There will be, therefore, nearly 300 local prizes to be distributed at the close of this contest.

Not all of the prize-winning sets will compete for the National awards—only the best 28 because the National awards number 28.

The person who wins the $10,000 trip around the world for two, on the Belgenland of the Red Star Line, will already have won a local prize of considerable proportions!

And so with all the other National awards.

AVOID IMITATING.

The winner of First Prize in the Boston Evening American Contest, the $3,000 tour of the Mediterranean for two, will have at least the prospect of taking down a National award of importance.

In any event, the 297 local prizes listed by the Boston Evening American MUST be won and WILL be won by Boston Evening American readers.

Is anybody finding this competition at all difficult? Better be practicing on your letter. The subject, you remember, is "Why I Like the Movies." Be sure to write not more than 300 words.

Read Greater Movie Season Contest Rules!

EVERY day for twenty consecutive publication days The Boston Evening American will print a scene from a different popular motion picture. The face or head of the star of the motion picture will be missing.

Everybody is invited to cut out these scenes and identify the star and the motion picture. Simply fill in the blank which is printed beneath the picture, using your knowledge of motion pictures generally and making use of the clews which will be printed with each picture.

The persons who, at the close of the contest, send in complete sets of the twenty scenes, naming the stars and the film plays correctly or most nearly correct, and who in other respects comply with these rules, will receive generous awards of unusual value.

The Grand National Prize will be a trip for two, around the world, on the steamship Belgenland of the Red Star Line. The Grand Local Prize will be a Mediterranean tour for two on the Royal Mail steamship Orca.

This contest is open to everybody except employes of the Boston Evening American and affiliated newspapers and persons engaged in any way in the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures.

To take part in this Greater Movie Season Contest will cost you nothing. It is not even required that you buy this newspaper. Copies or tracings of the pictures will be accepted on an equal basis with pictures clipped from The Evening American. The paper may be examined for this purpose at the office of publication.

Each day there will be printed a Special Clue that may help you to solve one of the problems that have already appeared or that are yet to be printed. On the fourth day of the contest, for example, there might be printed a Special Clue that would help in the solution of Number 16, or on the tenth day there might be printed a clue that would furnish exactly the information needed to solve No. 2.

Make a note of these Special Clues as they appear. If you cannot solve today's picture, do not give up! A Special Clue may come along that will refresh your memory.

In Problems Nos. 3, 11 and 19, it is sufficient to give only the name of the star; the name of the photoplay is not required.

This is a competition to test your skill and your knowledge of the best motion pictures. At the close of the contest you will be expected to send in, with your set of twenty pictures, a short letter why you like motion pictures. (Subject: "Why I Like the Movies.")

The sincerity and the originality of this letter will count in the final decision whenever, in the opinion of the judges, competing sets are otherwise of equal value as to accuracy and neatness.

ONE LOCAL PRIZE.

The local judges will be representatives of this newspaper designated for the purpose by the Managing Editor of the Boston Evening American, and their decision will be final. In the event of ties, a duplicate award will be made to each tying contestant.

Contestants may send in as many sets as they desire, but no contestant shall be entitled to more than one LOCAL prize.

Answers must be submitted in complete sets of twenty pictures, arranged in order. DO NOT SEND IN ANY PICTURES BEFORE THE CLOSE OF THE CONTEST. Wait for the printing of the final Contest Picture. Then mail your set of twenty pictures, POSTAGE FULLY PREPAID AT FIRST CLASS RATES, to Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Mass.

NATIONAL PRIZES.

Entries bearing insufficient postage will be returned through the Post Office. All sets must be in the office of the Contest Editor before midnight on Monday, September 13. No sets of pictures will be returned by the Boston Evening American.

The LOCAL prizes, as so listed in this newspaper, will be awarded exclusively to persons who participate in the Greater Movie Season Contest through the Boston Evening American.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE---By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT a wonderful time a man could have, during his wife's summer vacation, if it weren't for the weekly letter—and the attached questionnaire!

* * *

But, alas, just as his cup of joy seems to be full, she joggles his elbow, with the reminder that she's "coming home soon" and all the bliss gets spilled.

Still, while it lasts, it is a string of golden moments and simple joys. There's the morning bath, with nobody to tell him to "pick up the towels and hang up the bath-mat"—and nobody to rap on the door and ask him to "stop singing and turn off the water a minute, she wants to SAY something."

* * *

There are his shaving tools lying spread out, just where he left them, with nobody to disturb them or remind him that they're in the way.

* * *

There are three pairs of his pajamas hanging wherever he threw them, and nobody to hide them in the closet or confiscate them for the laundry.

* * *

There are his shoes under the bed—ALL of them—with nobody to pair them off or whisk them away into a dark impenetrable corner.

* * *

There are the week's newspapers, lying around almost anywhere—and nobody to stop him from throwing his ashes on them, or to stoop down and pick them up with the virtuous air of a martyr and the dumb reproach of a dog.

* * *

There is the electric fan STILL GOING when he wakes up in the morning, and nobody to take all the pep out of its comforting breeze with crushing remarks on his "extravagance."

* * *

There is the sudden storm in the night, with nobody to make him get up and close all the windows or let the cat in.

* * *

And there is the screen door wide open all day, and nobody to reproach him for letting in the flies.

* * *

There is the dust on the piano—and nobody to forbid him to throw his hat and drape his wet raincoat across it.

* * *

And there are all the cronies and all his wife's friends feeling "sorry for him," and inviting him to dinner and "coddling" him over the week-ends—and nobody to complain of his being late for meals or not relishing the stew.

* * *

And, there is the dog to greet him at two A. M. with real rejoicing in his bark, and nobody to ask him where he "has BEEN all this time," or to lie awake and get a headache listening for his latch-key.

* * *

Oh yes, there is EVERYTHING to make a man comfortable, carefree and supremely happy! And then—suddenly—there is "the WIFE!" Back again—just as she threatened! And his Golden Days are over! Ah me!

B. & M. GIVING 'CINDERLESS' SERVICE

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Electrification of the railroads, for which Boston business men have been fighting for years, seems still far away. But the new rolling stock of the Boston & Maine gives some comparatively remote places the same advantages of "cinderless travel" as afforded by "white coal."

• • •

Howard Coonley, who was president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce when the new quarters on Federal street were put up, is the subject of interesting comment by a Wall Street writer, who says: "Howard Coonley head of Woolworth Co., which next to the Crane Co. is the country's largest manufacturer of valves, fittings, etc., is beginning to believe that a 'jinx' attends him on his European trips.

Howard Coonley

Mr. Coonley has made two visits to the British Isles since 1900. Strangely enough, the first was in 1914, just at the time England declared war against Germany, and the second was in April this year, three days before the late general strike was set in motion.

• • •

Mr. Coonley had an excellent opportunity to observe the conduct of the British populace during the strike emergency. He came away much impressed with the phlegmatic behavior under strain. He says he did not hear a single man or woman "grouch" during the strike, but told of overhearing one Cockney scrub woman say to another, "H'I guess h'I'll arve to git h'out me private h'auto to git to work 'fore long." So far as the temporary inconveniences which he himself experienced both this year and in 1914 were concerned, Mr. Coonley regarded them as of no consequence in comparison with the interest of world's important events.

• • •

Mr. Coonley, while a Boston man, is well remembered in Washington for the valuable services he rendered during the war with the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He is taking an active part in the launching of the new Boston-New York air mail service and recently participated with some fellow-directors in a flight from Hartford to Boston during which the plane traveled at the rate of about 100 miles an hour.

Success by the Yard

The number of yards of fabrics produced by the American Woolen Company each year determines to a large extent the great value that each yard represents; for through large-scale production are effected economies that lower costs, thus placing good clothing within the reach of everyone.
